ROYAL SPLENDOR was captured by the initiation of another budding tradition—a homecoming float.

Traditions Cause WHS Renaissance

Only our building remained unchanged as Washington High School—1960—became Washington Senior High School—1961. Traditions and attitudes that served us well in the past proved insufficient for the present and future.

Wildcats readily responded to the need to create a new Washington. Our rejuvenated pride and spirit manifested itself not only in the classroom and on the athletic field, but in the general effort to expand each student's creative scope.

We had to walk a little faster and push ourselves a little harder. Split sessions added problems and responsibilities to our transition into a senior high school. But our efforts were well rewarded, for this was the year of developing Washington's new traditions—the traditions of victory, creativeness, and achievement.

CAUGHT!! Being a little late in leaving meant horrors to senior high students. Junior high students were turned loose five minutes after the Senior High day ended.

LET'S GO, BIG TEAM, LET'S GO!! urge game bound Wildcats. Evening send-offs replaced morning pep rallies.

REPRESENTATION WITHOUT TAXATION! The Student Council and Student Planning Board have evolved into influential tools of self-government.

ONE MORE SHOVE and in it goes! Crowded and confused locker sharers welcomed the end of split sessions.

Victories Create Pride in School

Washington's re-birth asserted itself in all that we did. Victory on the athletic field was followed by victory over the debate rostrum. Formation of a student planning board heralded the dynamic expansion of our student government program. Teachers' and administrators' sincere interest in student and school progress created an atmosphere that stimulated learning. We have created a school that deserves our pride.

BOARDING AT HIGH NOON students are quickly carted home on new buses. Renting the buses made it possible to eliminate the second run of buses.

AFTERNOON WORKOUTS replaced sixth hour sports. Athletes interested in participating stayed after hours to practice.

THIS ISN'T THE RIGHT CLASS discovers a perplexed student. The floating class schedule proved a hindrance to forgetful students.

We're From Washington

Dynamic new traditions which swept our school became evident in the new and enriched courses offered this year.

Fundamental courses in our nation's language and history prepared all for living in today's society. Radiation biology, statistical probability,
and other advanced science courses revolved around the problems of our modern age. Cultural horizons were broadened by the establishment of courses in stagecraft and music theory.
Vocational courses refined the students natural aptitudes into functional skills.

The restless probing of the student's mind demands the opportunity for enlightenment. Washington's curriculum provided and continues to provide this opportunity.

DR. G. WENDELL HUBBARD, Superintendent of Washington District High Schools, plans his day's work.

Plans and Actions Are Necessary

MR. MELVIN WINTERS is kept busy with his maps and making bus schedules for the school.

Assistant to Dr. Hubbard is Mr. Melvin Winters. He works with the bus service, making out routes and schedules, and providing drivers. Mr. Winters received his Master's degree at KSTC Emporia; now he is working toward his doctor's degree at the University of Kansas.

Administration Takes Initial Step

After receiving his doctor's degree from the University of Oklahoma, Dr. G. Wendell Hubbard gained most of his experience from that state.

Starting his second year at Washington last fall, Dr. Hubbard greeted the student body in a general assembly. Seeing and hearing him brought the students closer to his views.

Thirty years ago, Mr. Claude Huyck came to Washington as head coach in all sports. Seven years later, he became principal and has remained in this position for twenty-three years.

Most of Mr. Huyck's working hours are divided between supervising the attendance office, maintaining discipline, and working toward a more effective school program.

DR. HUBBARD WORKS closely with the principals of the newly finished Junior Highs. Mr. James Jester is principal of Arrowhead, and Mr. Rolland Junke is at Coronado.

MR. CLAUDE HUYCK, principal, enters his office for another busy day.

Serving as secretary to Mr. Huyck, principal, keeps Mrs. Betty Patton on the move. She helps him with his correspondence and in making up the principal's school report to the state superintendent. Being the clerk in charge of registrar and the activity fund also keeps Mrs. Patton busy.

Taking notes, answering the telephone, and making appointments for Dr. Hubbard, Mrs. Virginia Finkemeier, serves as secretary to the superintendent. Each day she learns a little more about how involved our school system really is. Mrs. Finkemeier worked previously with an advertising agency and a lawyer. She has been a resident of our newest state, Hawaii.

COMING OUT OF THE VAULT is Mrs. Betty Patton who keeps books for the activity fund.

Secretaries Essential — Duties Vary

MRS. VIRGINIA FINKEMEIER transcribes a letter which must go out immediately.

Miss Mary Trowbridge, bookkeeper and IBM operator, is a graduate of Washington. She attended IBM school under customers' training for the specific purpose of learning to work the various machines needed by the school.

Having completed her third year at Washington, Miss Trowbridge indicated with sincerity, "I enjoy working with IBM very much. It offers a variety of work and also cuts down the monotony."

Mrs. Rose Shobe, attendance clerk, calls to find why a student is absent. Each day she must check to verify every absentee. Using IBM cards to take roll in homeroom speeds the roll-taking process so that it doesn't take as much class time or rechecking during the day.

By the end of each day, Mrs. Shobe must know whether absent students are excused or unexcused and make up the absentee list for teachers.

MISS MARY TROWBRIDGE works at the IBM machine making out grade-cards to be distributed the next day.

Working Together Creates Efficiency

USING THE TELEPHONE occupies Mrs. Rose Shobe much of the time as she calls to find why a student is absent.

WHILE MRS. BETTY PATTON, secretary, counts money, Linda Stanley, office aide, answers the telephone.

SOPHOMORE COUNSELOR Mr. Wesley Beck was recommended for a federal grant to study counseling. He accepted the offer, studied, and came to Washington. He received his B.S. and M.S. from Oklahoma University. At Columbia University he earned his Professional Diploma in Guidance and Counseling.

JUNIOR COUNSELOR Mrs. Rita Roach looks over the file of one of her students. Helping with subject selections and working with Juniors to plan their futures keeps Mrs. Roach on a tight schedule. This is her first year in counseling and she smiles about the satisfaction and reward she has received.

FORMER BUSINESS TEACHER, Mr. Mahlon Porter, works with seniors as they prepare their futures. Although aiding with college scholarships, job placements, and vocational training keeps Mr. Porter busy, he always finds time to give personal advice and special attention when and where it is needed.

MR. WESLEY BECK discusses next year's schedule with a student who is "planning ahead."

Special guidance is available to every student at Washington. Three counselors divide the students according to classes: sophomore, junior, and senior. This way, the pupil will have the same counselor all through high school and they will know each other better.

Helping students to make decisions, to solve problems and to carry out responsibilities are the counselors' first objectives. Keeping students informed about job placements and scholarship tests is another of our counselors' flexible duties.

LOOKING OVER the bulletin board is a student interested in applying for a scholarship.

The Guidance Office keeps information posted about job opportunities and scholarship tests.

Reward Is Found in Helping Others

MR. MAHLON PORTER looks over transcripts of students with Mrs. Rita Roach.

WORKING WITH THE FILES is one of Gay Anderton's jobs in the Guidance Office.

CAROLEE CHADS, NURSE'S AIDE, assists Judy Gearheart until Mrs. Sass finishes helping another student.

Carolee makes the beds during first hour and types letters and reports for the nurse.

Nurse Gives Advice About Health Habits

HELPING TO CREATE a better health program is the task of Mrs. Dorothy Sass, registered nurse. She lectures to Home Economics and Physical Education classes, as well as informs everyone of good health practices. Mrs. Sass has met every student and keeps a personal file on each one.

TAKING TEMPERATURES IS done by nurses' aides, Martha Farris is helping Kathy Gates.

Librarian Assists In Finding Books

FILING LIBRARY CARDS is an everyday task of Donna Pinkleman, library aide.

AFTER ABANDONING TEACHING to become a librarian, Mrs. Marilyn Israel worked at a junior high and then came to Washington. She keeps the card catalog up-to-date and makes sure current magazines are available for students. Mrs. Israel also issues reminders when books are overdue.

CHECKING OUT BOOKS is only one of the many duties of library assistant Claurence Freeman, junior.

GOING THROUGH THE pocketbook files to make sure they are in the proper order is Pat Dixon, senior.

Preparing meals for an almost unpredictable number of students and teachers was the job of these ladies during the half-day sessions. Special menus were planned each day to suit teachers and students, as well as the athletes. Seeing everyone enjoy their meals is what makes our cafeteria personnel the happiest.

MRS. VIRGINIA HARTSHORN, cafeteria supervisor, helps Mrs. May Jantzi, Mrs. Mary Jane Gates, and Mrs. Dorothy Steintl prepare a special holiday lunch.

Cooks & Broom Crews Keep School Going

MR. JOHN BURROW, Mr. Edwin Miller, and Mr. Edward Schultz, morning custodians, prepare to clean the halls.

Beautiful flowers are budding again on the lawn that Mr. Walter Walker and his crew worked so hard on last summer. That was not all they did, however. A freshly painted auditorium greeted many happy eyes last fall at the first assembly.

Our custodians' jobs are many and varied. We have been classified as the cleanest school in the area, according to Mr. Claude Huyck, principal.

MR. WALTER WALKER cares for the flowers in front of Washington. This is his favorite pastime.

Academic

Mathematics Improves Mental Powers

ADVANCED MATHEMATICS students find that the calculating machine takes the effort out of solving trigonometry problems. Sometimes these problems become a community project as in this case.

Advanced math students have divided their course of study into four nine-weeks' periods. First they study function, then statistics and probability, followed by trigonometry, and finally the second part of functions. Incorporating a modern approach, the students seek an understanding of a basic theory. Through discussions and exams they reinforce their knowledge. Using the principles of trigonometry, a student may stand at the base of the Empire State Building and arrive at its height. A study of probability shows how many times a person can possess four Aces in a card game.

MR. WILLIAM SELLERS, teacher of Advanced Mathematics and Applied Mathematics, enjoys watching educational programs on his television set before school. He has his M.S. and he is an enthusiastic follower of the progress that W.H.S. makes in sports.

SLIDE RULES are a help in mathematic calculations, such as square roots, cube roots, and proportions.

CHUCK GILL, with the aid of a demonstration-sized slide rule, works on an Algebra II problem in Mr. Hunter's room.

Minds Are Filled With Signs and Numbers

Algebra I and II, as well as geometry, were dished out to students during Mr. Hunter's math courses in Room 216 this year. Limited class time resulted in limited learning. Unlike last year, Mr. Hunter has stayed close to the homefires of the required studies and has not done very much "extra" teaching. This was due to the half-day sessions last fall. Mathematics taught by Mr. Hunter provides a good bit of knowledge which can be used in any occupation.

MEL O'CONNOR is found pausing in his work on ogarithms, a form of algebra which utilizes multiples of en.

READING TAKES PRECEDENCE for Mr. William Hunter, geometry teacher; then comes television and athletics. Bridge is his favorite card game. Mr. Hunter earned his B.S. and M.S. from K.S.T.C., Emporia, with a major in math. His goal in teaching is to become a millionaire; not with money, but in thoughts of the students he might have helped learn something new.

MEASUREMENT AND MATHEMATICS are inseparable twins in Washington's math classes. A protractor aids Pat Miller in determining the size of the angle she has constructed.

MATH! MATH! MATH! Mr. William Mondt teaches a full day of math, but finds the monotony broken due to the fact that he teaches three different phases of this subject: Algebra, Geometry and Applied Math. "Mathematics helps the science student directly and aids students in organizing their thinking and solving their problems." Mr. Mondt received his B.S. in mechanical engineering from the University of Colorado. He is also assistant varsity football coach.

Math Metamorphosis Is Asset to Students

Modern math has progressed from being one of the three "R's." Today math includes many branches such as these taught by Mr. Mondt.

Algebra II expands Algebra I with the inclusion of quadratic and functional equations, logarithms, and trigonometry. Geometry, based upon deductive reasoning, encompasses plane and solid geometry. Functional math is offered to those who do not plan further mathematical study.

UNSOLVED PROBLEMS cry to be answered so puzzled students seek the aid of their teacher. Dorothy Reeves questions Mr. Mondt about a solid geometry theorem.

Chemistry is a subject designed to make a person think. Along with this, it also gives one a chance to study chemical reactions of biological elements, as well as understanding the background of the world we live in. It particularly gives students the opportunity to practice scientific methods in a way similar to that of college life.

Mr. John Meek also teaches applied math. This course is an integrated program of four math areas—algebra, arithmetic, geometry, and trigonometry. Applied math was designed specifically for those students not electing to go on to college.

CARELESS CHEMISTS BEWARE!! Delicate and expensive equipment such as the analytical balance being used by Lynn Minger was necessary for chemical experimentation. Those students who broke or lost apparatus had to dig deep into their pockets to replace the loss.

Chemistry — a Thinking Man's Subject

MR. JOHN MEEK, chemistry and applied math teacher, believes there are three things a successful teacher must do: (1) motivate, (2) communicate, and (3) make his student think. As sponsor for the junior class and National Honor Society, he finds very little time for his favorite pastime, photography. Mr. Meek earned his B.S. in chemistry from K.S.T.C., Emporia.

CLOSE CONCENTRATION is absolutely essential in the investigation of chemical phenomena. Junior, Ken Jones, prepares a solution for a titration test.

WATERING THIS JUNGLE of plant life is the task of Diane Hill, Biology II student. It is a pleasure to see these flowering shrubs in mid-winter.

Biology Students See Life in Minute Form

MR. VIRGIL BOATWRIGHT shows his Biology II students what's involved in the art of dissection. He has a B.S. and M.S. from Emporia, and is working on his specialist degree. He enjoys camping out with his family, fishing, and bowling. Mr. Boatwright believes that rationalism and empirism should be employed when teaching a science.

Students in Mr. Boatwright's Biology II class have studied the smallest microscopic life. Protozoan life in its minute form can be viewed by the microscope. Concentrated study has been done in the science of genetics and on the theory of evolution. The later part of the year will be spent on research work by the students on individual projects. A knowledge of the smallest animal ranging on upward to man is encouraged as classroom curriculum. Specimens of snakes, possums, and mice are noticeable as the students do lab work. An introspection of body make-up will be gained from dissection of fetal pigs by each student.

TERRY RAY SEEMS TO have the master's touch when it comes to dissecting a fetal pig. His partner, Virginia Monroe, watches him as she adjusts the microscope.

Classes Explore Plant, Animal Life

TO REACH THE STANDARDS he demands of others is the goal of Mr. Hobart Neill, biology instructor. A native Kansan, he likes coaching cross country and track best. Photography and sports are his hobbies. Mr. Neill majored in Physical Education and science at Kansas State and at the University of Kansas. He received his A.B. and M.S. degrees.

FIELD TRIPS ARE ENJOYED by Mr. Neill as well as his students. This is an example of a teacher "outside the classroom," he is hunting for butterflies.

Biology, the study of plants and animals, is required for graduation. Students learn the life cycle of certain plants and animals, they observe the growth of various parts of nature. While dissecting worms and frogs, the classes realize the intricate details of God's handiwork.

Learning these minute creations of nature does not end when the bell rings to dismiss the subject. Field trips to see Nature at work are enjoyed and they encourage students to study with enthusiasm about the basics of science.

Reading also helps these young biologists; the textbook defines new words so that the subject can be more easily understood.

DISSECTING A WORM isn't really too morbid. Joyce Greve and Steve Elder discuss the different parts of its body as they prepare their work.

USING A CART with practically frictionless bearings, Terry Ray, Dianne Hill, and Tommy Fisher study the important difference between speed and acceleration.

MEASURING THE DIAMETER of a molecule are Frank Janzen and Mike Whittier.

TAKING ADVANTAGE of teaching aids, Mr. Bill Aldridge, PSSC Physics instructor, uses a caliper as a guide to understanding barometer readings. Mr. Aldridge spends his time teaching his students how to think rather than what to believe. He received his B.S. and M.S. from KU, and has attended Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, University of Hawaii, and Kansas City University.

DAILY EXAMS encouraged students to read text book material thoroughly.

Motion and Mass

Matter to Physicists

DISCOVERING the relationship between weight and displacement, Margaret Williams and Martin Thomas learn another basic law of physics.

PSSC Physics is an introduction to the three fundamental notions of time, space and matter. The student learns how to measure magnitudes immensely large and infinitely small. Through extensive laboratory work, the student learns how instruments serve as an extension of the senses. But more important, the student learns how to test and prove events for himself.

Psychology Initiates Successful Living

EAT RIGHT TO LIVE RIGHT urged Mr. Eikermann throughout the year. To be mentally fit, man must be physically fit. Frank Janzen and Mr. Eikermann practice this philosophy in the school cafeteria.

INEXPENSIVE PAPERBACKS sold by the school library provide psychology students Judy Story and Joanne Brougham with an opportunity to explore man's mental adventures.

EVERY HUMAN IS classified as a "biological being" according to Mr. Ed Eikermann, a man of many theories, but better known to students as the Psychology teacher. After graduating from K.S.T.C. Emporia with a B.S. Mr. Eikermann began his teaching career and for the last 13 years has been a member of the WHS staff. Extracurricular enjoyments include summer sports and his two children.

PARENTS STOP TO observe Mr. Gilbert Davidson's display of radioactive equipment at open house. This equipment is used to teach Biology students about a special branch of the course called Radiation Biology. Students are taught how to prepare a home shelter in case of an atomic war.

Frogs and fetal pigs aren't exactly pleasure to study; however, Mr. Davidson's Biology students know that dissecting these animals will increase their knowledge of body make-up. Biology students are not only required to understand the mechanics of the microscope, but also to be able artists of microscopic life. Each student keeps a notebook with all the plates he has drawn. Physiology students keep notebooks of all notes they take in class. Mr. Davidson makes the course of Physiology more thorough by adding supplementary material to that in the textbook. This material teaches the students to trace a drop of blood from the heart to any place in the body. The names of all the bones in the human skeleton must be memorized.

Biology Utilizes Films, Frogs, and Fallout

"SCALPEL . . . SCISSORS . . . TWEEZERS," cry Mr. Gilbert Davidson's Biology students as they begin dissecting frogs. The body features will be drawn and labeled by these students as they perform their minor operations.

SHOWING FILMS TO his Biology and Physiology classes, Mr. Gilbert Davidson has a chance to mix his hobby of photography with teaching. Mr. Davidson received his B.S. at Pittsburg and his M.S. at Emporia. Always working for the benefit of his students, he is writing a textbook about radiation for high school students.

STUDENTS IN A GROUP means someone important is in the center, like Mrs. Martha Richards, journalism instructor. She received her B.A. degree at Fort Hays Kansas State College with an English major. Receiving an award from Wall Street Journal for building a program to interest the students in journalism encouraged

Mrs. Richards to continue in that field. The Washingtonian and Hatchet don't always take the spotlight on this busy teacher's schedule. She is a steady bowler in the teachers' league; ice-skating and listening to music are also her favorites.

Journalists Write to Please Readers

Writing for the Washingtonian requires knowledge, dependability, and good usage of English. Giving the students informative, interesting news is the newspaper's first goal. To do this, twenty-four staff members worked together, planning according to the reader's demands.

Yearbook initiated a new credit last fall. Hatchet staff members met during class time and were graded on their planning, writing, and ability to meet deadlines. Each person had copy, headlines, pictures, and final layouts due on certain dates; it was his own duty to have these in without having to be reminded. Therefore, each student was responsible for his own progress toward the final goal.

PAPERS EVERYWHERE is a typical sight for the bulletin board in room 208. Barbara French and Allen Addison, beginning journalists, look over assignments of Washingtonian reporters; next fall the stories may be theirs.

Debaters Prepare Material, Speeches

Organized argument with chronological reasoning might well describe debate. The topic is worked on during second semester and the summer. Actual debate practice begins in class in the fall. The problem is also debated with teams from other schools.

After a new question is decided, second semester is again used to gather information which will be debated when school starts in September.

BOOKS ARE ESSENTIAL to debate coach Alan Gould. His teaching is based on trying to improve the society of which he is a part. He earned his B.S. degree at KSTC, Emporia. During his extra hours, Mr. Gould enjoys bowling, tennis, and golf. First semester weekends are often spent with his debate squads as he sponsors their trips to other schools.

MEL O'CONNER AND DOROTHY REEVES took pride in giving their first trophy of the season to Washington. The question was, "Resolved: That the United Nations should be significantly strengthened."

PREPARING TO LEAVE for a debate tournament brings laughter and fun to these four girls. Serious thought will come later.

AN IDEA makes Paula Chainey's design for mosaic art.

MOSAIC ART tests Paula's patience.

God Guides Hands

DISCUSSING A FINISHED PIECE of mosaic are Paula and Dale Wilch.

DEEP CONCENTRATION by Charles Johnson will result in another completed sketch to help his grade in art.

MOLDING AN ASHTRAY to its final form is Mr. Edgar Grafke, art instructor. Being sponsor of Art Club keeps him busy, as well as his hobbies which are drawing and painting, fishing, hunting, and sports. After graduating from W.H.S., Mr. Grafke attended K.S.T.C., Emporia, and majored in Art and Physical Education to obtain his B.S. degree.

Art, which is offered three years, develops the talent and originality of students as well as their appreciation of art and design. First year art students gain experience in different media, including sketching in chalk, pencil, charcoal, pen and ink, and painting in water color and tempera. Art II students learn the techniques of commercial art by designing magazine illustrations, book and record covers, fabric designs, and Christmas cards. Art III students specialize in a field of particular interest to them. Working with clay to make pottery and making their own jewelry are also a source of pride to art students.

Amateurs Create Nature in Still Life

FILLING THE DISPLAY CASE occupies Joydean Boyd. As different phases of art are studied, examples of students' handiwork can be observed by everyone.

WORKING ON SIMILAR sketches, Rita Sainich, Jim McNaughton, and Linda Lindelof compare their work. Every artist has his individual style.

SINGING RINGS throughout the year from Mr. James Ralston's vocal music classes. He also is finishing his second year as head Pep Club sponsor. To help him in his challenge of inspiring artistic capabilities, Mr. Ralston attended Kansas University and received his B.A. and M.S. He dreams about relaxing on an exotic South Sea Island.

Music theory offers a new challenge to vocal music students this year. In this class, advanced singers work composing music and listening to records to detect sounds not heard by untrained ears.

Madrigal is the goal of most Wildcat singers, it is composed of A Cappella Choir members. The Washington Singers, also chosen from the choir, sang Christmas carols to the students last Christmas among their other activities.

Seating is arranged according to sound effect and singing ability. Advancement is won through try-outs, first into A Cappella, then into Madrigal or the Washington Singers.

Singing Rings Throughout the Year

TRIOS SING for a grade in Boys' Chorus. They are graded on tone, notes, and effort.

"ME-MAY-MY-MOH-MOO" floats from the practice of A Cappella Choir as they warm-up for a song. They have voice exercises which help them project and enunciate better. This develops tone quality and makes the words more understandable.

Band Develops Health, Good Posture

KEEPING IN TUNE takes practice according to Toni Emery and Darlene Skinner. They're working toward varsity band next fall.

CLEAN HORNS just seem to sound better says Bonny Smith as she polishes her instrument.

Varsity band represents Washington many times between the first football game and graduation. Most instrumental musicians start in beginning band and graduate into varsity band.

Members of the pep band are selected through tryouts in varsity band. They play at every home basketball game and at pep rallies.

Band helps to develop co-ordination between mind and body. It also creates good posture which is necessary for correct breath control. Practice for band is different from other subjects; the key is in ability and practice, not study and desire.

STUDYING A SCORE of music is Mr. Edwin Hosking, band director. Listening to a good band is one of his hobbies as well as part of his job. He also likes woodworking. Graduating with a B.S. in Education from KSTC Emporia, Mr. Hosking had majors in music and social science. Mr. Hosking's main objective is to help the music student achieve his goal, whether it is enjoying music as a listener, as a performer, or as a teacher.

CLOSETS FOR EVERYTHING abound in Mr. Billy Coplin's dramatics room. Mr. Coplin attended Pittsburg and Emporia Colleges and earned his Bachelor of Science degree. Summer theater fills most of his agenda between spring and fall.

PREPARING STAGE PLANS requires concentration and much time. Glenda Martindale and Sherian Miller sketch lighting and scenery arrangements for a play.

If a student had passed dramatics, he could enroll in stagecraft, a new course this year. It offers more technical study of stage terms and lighting to give a fuller picture "behind the scenes." This class designed all of the stage sets used in plays and the operetta. Students are given full responsibility of producing all parts of the play except the acting. They are eligible to try out for parts if they want to, however.

"Pantomime is the key to all action." In dramatics, students learn that every day they are acting, and so is everyone around them. Of course, it is unconscious acting, but it is a talent used by every person.

Stage definitions and kinds and types of lights are studied, classes learn the parts of stage flats and how to put them together. They practice acting and working with a tape recorder to better understand the fundamentals of dramatics.

Stagework Develops

CARRYING FLATS to and from the "mole hole" keeps Richard Sloan, Evelyn Fountain, and Ron Fehrenbach busy. Stagecraft uniforms were purchased for class members to wear while doing their many jobs.

Carpenters, Artists — Unusual Talents

APPLYING MAKE-UP is no easy job in some instances. Dramatics students practice blending colors and creating different characters on each other.

"CLIMBING A LADDER can be one of the simpler tasks when you're building sets for a play," laughs Janet Schlenker. Doug Lindsey has no superstitions as he works below the ladder.

MRS. BARBARA PETER, accomplished language teacher and graduate of the University of Texas with a B.A., feels that to understand people one must have a knowledge of their language, customs and cultures. To prove her point, she has spent a great deal of time studying the native people of the language she teaches.

VIVID POSTERS WITH illustrations of the city of Paris cover the wall of Mrs. Peter's French class. In this colorful atmosphere, students prepare to recite French verbs in unison.

Students Discover Foreign Cultures

Spanish, the simplest of foreign languages, is offered two years. The customs and lives of the people are studied, as well as learning to translate their language in speech.

French is becoming more popular with students of today. Two years of study are available for foreign language enthusiasts.

COPIES OF LIFE MAGAZINE are published in several foreign languages. Here the Spanish students are reading the Spanish version of Life. Each student will translate one article that is of interest to the rest of the class.

Latin Is Key to Many Languages

MRS. SELMA SMITH is giving a lesson on Roman architecture by using pictures and a model replica of a temple. Mrs. Smith majored in English and minored in Latin and social studies. She became a charter member of Eta Sigma Phi, an honorary fraternity for Greek and Latin students. Attending the National Council of Teachers of English fiftieth anniversary meeting in Chicago was a highlight of the year for her.

WHOSE TOGA FITS THE BEST? Lester Nichols, Don Siner, Bob Sands, and Bill Pierson adjust each other's togas. They learned to make their togas from sheets while they were studying Roman dress in Latin class.

LOOKING OVER A MAP of Rome interests Carla Beckett as Judy Hughes points out a familiar city. Both girls are first-year Latin students.

Knowing a foreign language is becoming more and more important. Latin which is the key to most languages, is one of the oldest languages known.

Students may study Latin for two years. Since it is the basis of many living languages, a knowledge of Latin often helps in learning another language.

"Tools" Provide

RECORDINGS of Shakespearean plays aid students in their understanding of English drama, observes Barbara French, sophomore, as the class prepares to listen to act two of Julius Caesar.

SITTING IN HIS FAVORITE classroom pose, Mr. Brooke Collison appears pleased with his sophomore and senior English classes. Mr. Collison encourages students to understand and appreciate English as a tool rather than as forced formal training. He has a B.S. in education and in the summer is completing his Master's degree at Kansas University.

"DID I PASS?" This is the question Mr. Brooke Collison's sophomore English students are asking themselves as Mr. Collison hands them the results of a test. Mr. Collison hopes that his students will work and thus earn happy results.

Students should enjoy what they do. This is the philosophy of Mr. Brooke Collison, sophomore and senior English teacher. This year his senior English classes studied Macbeth and also heard the play on television. His sophomore classes listened to a recording of Julius Caesar. Mr. Collison's students also hear recordings of other plays, essays, short stories, and poems. Writing themes, including explanatory, persuasive, and informative essays, also comprise part of the studies. Most of these essays are written informally in class.

Classroom Variety

"I hope to prepare my students through the study of the fundamentals of writing, through actual writing experience, and through the study of English literature to express themselves clearly and to read critically," states Miss Fulton, English instructor. This course enables students to be successful in their future education or jobs and to become responsible citizens. Nine book reports are required and each student receives instruction on writing original paragraphs.

KNOWING WHERE TO FIND needed information for English class is invaluable. Sharon Fase straightens the bookshelf in her search for a suitable book to report on. Checking for the correct pronunciation of words are David Barnhart and Carol Shaner.

MISS JENNIE FULTON, junior and senior English instructor, files cards containing a record of each student's book reports. Majoring in language and art, she has a B.S. in education from Kansas University. During the summer Miss Fulton teaches Red Cross swimming classes and relaxes by painting and playing the piano.

USING THE DICTIONARY is not unusual for English. Trudie Odneal looks for the pronunciation and definition of a new word to add to her vocabulary.

STUDENTS GAIN POISE and confidence, and learn to think on their feet by standing to recite. Gerry Nell Adams reads from her literature book.

FINISHING HER SECOND YEAR at Washington, Mrs. Carol Ruegg is teaching junior English. Mrs. Ruegg believes that certain qualities are essential to good students. These include honesty, sincerity, and a sense of humor. Majoring in English and homemaking, she attended St. Mary's College and received her B.A. degree.

Outside reading is vital to a thorough knowledge of literature and the English language. For this reason, every English teacher requires at least six book reports. To pass English, these book report assignments must be completed and be given a passing grade.

These reports are given in various ways; most often they are written in class. Occasionally they are given orally or the books are discussed in panel discussions. Additional book reports are often assigned for extra credit or to improve a grade. This required outside reading widens the pupil's vocabulary and knowledge and helps prepare him for college.

BOOKS, PENCILS, and paper added to deep thinking will develop some completed homework for these literature students. Virgil Deshler, Larry Winkler, and Saundra McCarty prepare to work on tomorrow's assignment.

DISCUSSING ENGLISH with her classes kept Miss Florence Hart well occupied during her first year at Washington. She attended Central Missouri's State College where she received an A.B. At Columbia University, she earned her M.S. Having taught English for many years, Miss Hart feels well-informed about the subject. Traveling in the United States, Canada, and Europe has widened her vocabulary as well as informing her of English usage around the world.

From Intense Study

English is either an asset or a hindrance to every student. The importance of good English is stressed by having it required three years.

During one semester, literature takes the lead. Prose and poetry, plays and monologs are read and discussed. Going into and finding a deeper meaning of a poem or story is one task of students. Literature also draws them away from every-day life and brings in a new world of relaxation and enjoyment.

Recordings of plays and poems are listened to. Teachers feel that hearing literature read correctly encourages more interest in the subject as well as adding variety and enjoyment to the class.

ATTENTIVE LISTENING and concentration are important for progress in English. Each thought brings new questions to mind about this ever-changing language. Miss Hart's classes study each phase of grammar.

English Develops From 1400 A.D.

ADJUSTING THE RECORD PLAYER are Fred Hand and Mike Corrison. The students will listen to poetry read by authors and actors.

MAJORS IN VOCAL MUSIC AND ENGLISH are claimed by Mr. Eldon Zollars, junior English teacher. He earned his B.S. degree at Kansas State. Industrious students and sincere teachers impress Mr. Zollars. He sings in his church choir and enjoys sports.

TO DIAGRAM SENTENCES, you must first know your parts of speech and how to use them. Chris Van de Veer tests her knowledge at the blackboard.

English is a study with no end; it began far back in history, it continues far into the future.

Ancient man originated English with an uncertain tongue and difficult meanings. Today we study what he created and further new language developments. Tomorrow's students will complete our work and continue the cycle, finding new horizons in English.

While some subjects such as history or music or physical education are stressed for only one year or maybe two, English, grammar, and literature are learned through many years of consecutive study through grade school, high school, even in college. English is essential to every student's education today and his future tomorrow.

History Builds Foundations for Life

World history and American history are the foundations of knowledge about social science. World history is not required, but it is available for any individual. It concerns all parts of the globe and all kinds of people, their ways of life and their government. Sophomores usually dominate this class because it is the only year another social science course is not required.

American history is necessary before a student can graduate; it must be taken during the junior year. It examines the discovery of America and her growth. It is also the basis for Problems in American Democracy which is a senior requirement.

STUDYING THE GLOBE occupies Al Dolinar, Gus Vedros, and Steve Allen as they prepare for world history class. Knowing where a country is helps in discussing its type of government.

GOLF AND BOWLING are Mr. Clayton Wolfe's best games, but he thinks fishing is relaxing. A teacher of world history and American history, Mr. Wolfe believes that the ability to understand his students is his first job, then he can teach accordingly. Mr. Wolfe majored in physical education at Kansas State where he received his B.S.

READING THE NEWSPAPER is a standing assignment for Sharon Hotujac. American history covers current events as well as past happenings in Mr. Wolfe's classes.

"IN AMERICAN HISTORY, before students can grasp history they must know the values of history and why they are taking the course other than its being required," says Mr. Robert Wilson, American History teacher, who is a graduate of K.S.T.C., Emporia, with a B.S. and M.S. Mr. Wilson officiates as tennis coach, assistant varsity basketball coach and senior sponsor.

HISTORY COMES ALIVE through creative projects including maps, political cartoons, debates, and term papers. Gary Willett explained America's expansion through this map.

History Links Past,

CONTROVERSIAL ISSUES OF our modern society are expounded in the American Observer, a weekly publication studied by Mr. Robert Wilson's American History classes.

American History is a course designed to give students the historical background of our country. The instructors of this course, Mr. Robert Wilson, and Mr. Emerson Wilson, feel that knowing past events will determine what young people now will do as future citizens and leaders.

Juniors are required to take American History for a full year. They are instructed in various phases of our country's history.

It is hoped that through this course students will learn to benefit from past mistakes of our ancestors and re-use past accomplishments in the future.

THE REAL VALUE of an education comes with the realization, after you have completed your schooling, that there's much you don't know," professes head football coach and American History instructor Emerson Wilson. His proud possessor of a B.S. and M.S. from Colorado University enjoys classical music and rare books as an avocation.

EXPLORATION of our nation's history is accented by the study of those obscure tales of how the people lived. Washington's library serves as an excellent hunting ground for such stories.

Present and Future

AFTER CLASS DISCUSSIONS brought a clearer understanding of our nation's heritage. Mickey Ray and Keith Stanley consult Mr. Wilson.

PREPARING A bulletin board display on Russia is Mr. Thomas Northrop, Problems in American Democracy teacher. He graduated from Emporia K.S.T.C. with a B.S. "We should walk on our own feet; work with our own hands; and speak with our minds," states Mr. Northrop. As the collector of historical documents, Mr. Northrop possesses a sixteen foot long election ballot.

JUDY LOWE AND LOYDEAN BARKER have completed their applications for the trip to New York and Washington, D. C. They are discussing details of the trip as they wait for Mr. Northrop to take their checks and application forms.

New Course Creates New Perspective

PEERING FROM behind a maze of history books are Bill Miros and Larry Pepperdine. They are preparing for an oral discussion on Great Britain that they will give along with other members of their group.

This is the first year that the course of Problems in American Democracy has been offered to students at Washington. Mr. Northrop believed that this was a good year to begin the course since it was an election year. His students prepared reports on the Democrat and Republican party platforms. Five of his students traveled to New York and Washington, D. C., under his direction in April this year.

HAVING ONLY THREE minutes before the train leaves for New York and Washington, D. C., Joann Brougham, Wayne Grazier, and Carolee Chads wave good-by to friends.

Citizenship Qualities; Goal for the Future

MR. STARBUCK'S STUDENTS are kept busy underlining the important points he stresses in lectures. These students are reviewing one more time before a test.

MR. JOHN STARBUCK straightens the government books his students use to supplement their Problems in American Democracy book. "Students should be taught in a manner that will create a learning situation which, although it cannot be perfect for a large group, does fit the needs of most," states Mr. Starbuck. Having received his B.S. from Colorado University, he is working on his M.S. at Kansas University. Mr. Starbuck majored in political science and economics.

Problems in American Democracy incorporates economics, sociology, and government. Mr. Starbuck's students study the social problems of juvenile delinquency, dating, and class distinction. The economic developments of business and labor movements, housing, clothing, and food for the consumer are discussed. Students gain a knowledge of the government's organization in the Senate and the House of Representatives. Through reading material on these subjects, taking notes, and lectures, Mr. Starbuck's students will become active and intelligent citizens.

MARGARET WILLIAMS AND NORMA ROBERTS seem to have found the answer to possible career opportunities. All of Mr. Starbuck's students must complete an outline on their vocational choice.

"Printers' Devils" Gain Experience

Tickets for school activities and plays, library and hall passes, office forms, the school directory, and the weekly Washingtonian are printed by students in Mr. Schoenig's advanced classes. This year his students printed 10,000 special football and basketball programs that contained sixteen pages. Altogether, Mr. Schoenig figures that they produce approximately a million impressions a year.

MR. ARDEN SCHOENIG has the weekly task of printing 1,000 copies of the Washingtonian. He received his B.S. and M.S. from Pittsburg State Teachers College. "Shop work in printing offers the conscientious boy a chance to take part in the responsibility of printing production for school functions," believes Mr. Schoenig.

AS THESE STUDENTS set up a headline given to them by a journalism student, they strive for accuracy. In the process of printing the Washingtonian, these boys will be given an opportunity to run the printing press.

SETTING TYPE is not difficult when the student has mastered the various styles and has learned the lay of the case as these students have done.

Ability With Figures Useful in Bookkeeping

"PREPARING A WORKSHEET takes concentration and accuracy," declares June Richards as she prepares to rule a line before adding the totals. The worksheet is the initial step in preparing reports for the ledgers and journals.

DESCRIBING THE STEPS in one phase of bookkeeping takes more than just a minute for Mr. Wayne Filmer. This bookkeeping and typing teacher majored in business at K.S.T.C., Emporia, while earning his B.A. and M.S. He wants to help his students become good citizens. Mr. Filmer is a Boy Scout worker in his spare time.

To use figures correctly is an asset no matter what line of work is followed. Numbers must be used whenever a purchase is made or something is sold; they must be used for figuring assets and liabilities.

Bookkeeping helps not only business-minded commerce students, but also future homemakers and laborers. It includes keeping journals and ledgers, preparing payrolls, writing checks and figuring bank statements, even figuring income tax.

Students study phases of bookkeeping, then they practice the work on paper. They must complete everything in ink. Mistakes are not erasable, but they can and must be corrected.

"TRANSACTIONS ARE SIMPLE, if you learn to do them correctly the first time," says George Knittle. He is describing assets and liabilities.

Students may familiarize themselves with office machines and correct office etiquette in Office Practice. The course is designed to prepare students for the business world. Model offices put every student's knowledge to work. Pupils prepare invoices and purchase orders, plan advertising, do bookkeeping, file, and type letters. During the year, they have chances to do each of these jobs. Advancement is even put into effect much the same as in a regular office.

Jobs right after graduation will be available to the students making top grades in this business course.

Business law also provides a thorough background for commerce students. It describes business problems and how they are solved.

Business Students Plan Model Office

OFFICE MACHINES became a necessity this year for Mr. Robert Russell as he began his first year of teaching Office Practice. Majoring in Business Education, he earned his B.S. and M.S. from KSTC Emporia. Watching major league baseball is Mr. Russell's greatest pleasure.

"BEING RECEPTIONIST is no easy job," smiles Jeanne Gray, "But it isn't as difficult as some of the other office work."

KEEPING THE BOOKS is a big responsibility in any office. Patsy Burgess, Charlotte White, and Donna Smith work together to balance the ledger and journal.

Nimble Fingers Learn

Accurate, Fast Typing

Bob: It's been nice knowing you and having you in class. Good luck + I'll see you around next year.
M. A. Meares

Typing is the initial step into the business world. It is essential for a commerce student to study shorthand or office practice.

Beginner typists learn the keys of their machines and progress from there. They work for accuracy and speed. Students learn three letter styles and two types of punctuation, these are practiced with intense concentration.

Manuscripts are required from every typist. These must be finished in correct form with no erasures.

JUST WATCHING ALL the kids go by is Mr. Micheal Meares as students pass between classes. Teaching Typing I puts him very close to pupils as he instructs a somewhat difficult skill. Mr. Meares has a B.S. and an M.S. in education, which he earned at K.S.T.C. Emporia. Taking slides and traveling are his favorite hobbies, he finds great content in being able to share with others.

UNDER THE STRAIN of a time limit, these students type to complete that final sentence before their teacher tells them to stop.

DOUGLAS FLEISCHER wonders what he did to loosen this typewriter cylinder. For a beginning typist this can be a problem.

THROUGH THE DOORWAY of Mr. Masters' beginning shorthand class, his students can be seen taking dictation. They must not be disturbed in their effort to get some outline written to represent every word they hear.

When the beginning shorthand students have learned this skill, they will have acquired a tool that will help them obtain interesting and successful positions in business. After they have learned to recognize outlines of each word, they must write eight pages each day and transcribe business letters.

Shorthand II students are working on a special project this year. Each girl is responsible for writing to one industry and obtaining a list of technical terms used in that vocation. These lists which have the proper outline beside each term are useful to students who have graduated and are now working in these industries.

Girls Practice for Speed Learning, Writing Symbols

ALTHOUGH THESE SHORTHAND I students would like to take another look at their books before further dictation, they must try to succeed without any peeking.

HAVING A SENSE OF humor and of fairness are strict beliefs of Mr. Jack Masters. Playing records for his Shorthand I and II classes helps the students to develop speed. Mr. Masters earned his B.S. and M.S. at K.S.T.C., Emporia. "The school exists for the benefit of the students," he explains, "my job is to provide a thorough background which will be an asset to them as employees."

HOME ECONOMICS INSTRUCTOR, in charge of Clothing I, II, and III declares, "I would like to be the kind of teacher I want my children to have." Mrs. Howard enjoys creative handwork and in her free time does a great deal of sewing for her family. She obtained her B.S. from Kansas State University and has put in additional hours at Kansas City University.

Home Economics was taught in three divisions this year; cooking, sewing, and family living, each a separate class.

Sewing is practiced from darning socks to making formals. Each step is learned and developed according to the year of sewing the girl is in.

Advanced sewing classes are available for girls who want to learn tailoring.

A GLANCE INTO sewing class shows the girls cutting out material, sewing darts, and ironing garments. These students receive satisfaction from being prepared as future homemakers.

What's Cooking? . . .

HAVING PREPARED A NEW RECIPE and sampled the results, Miss Wilson's cooking class cleans up the kitchen. These girls are hurrying to get the dishes washed and dried before the bell rings. They realize that cleanliness is a vital part of cooking.

MISS CATHERINE WILSON, Home Economics teacher, specializing in food preparation and family living feels that it is her duty, "To help girls become the best homemakers possible." A graduate of the University of Kansas, Miss Wilson received her B.S. from KSTC Emporia. Outside of class she enjoys reading, sewing, and playing bridge.

Or Is It Burning!

Having dinners and teas during class for their mothers and for faculty members puts the girls' cooking skills to work.

Girls taking home economics for the three years it is offered, learn everything from fixing a simple lunch to canning fruits and vegetables.

Family living includes learning child care and discipline, as well as learning to keep a happy home. The course is devised to help every girl whether she intends to be a homemaker or a career woman.

GAINING EXPERIENCE for any emergency, Ann Roberts and Isaac Taylor receive their first lesson on how to change a flat tire.

Pass Test . . . Will Drive

MR. RICHARD LEE, basketball coach, incorporates a model cylinder in his teaching of drivers education. Attending Oklahoma State University, Mr. Lee has a B.S. in psychology and Master's degree in guidance and counseling. Through his hobby of collecting books about basketball for a personal library, Mr. Lee hopes to become a better coach. He is making plans for organizing an athletic program with counseling aid for all basketball players.

Drivers education is a combination of knowledge gained in the classroom discussions or tests and the developing of skills. Students must keep a three grade average on all tests in order to drive during their study hall. Basic parts of the car, functional operations, and fixing flat tires are taught by Mr. Richard Lee.

ON THIS MODEL traffic board Mr. Richard Lee's students set up traffic hazards that occur when driving. Candy Bishop and Chuck Wood have placed the cars in the correct traffic lanes to illustrate how to change lanes safely and how to cross intersections.

Auto mechanics is a vocational course offered for three hours each day. One year is spent acquiring a knowledge of automotive parts before students begin shopwork. This knowledge is applied in the fixing of faculty and student cars. The classroom procedure is similar to that of any garage. Since the students have their own tool room, they must learn to locate needed parts efficiently. The boys are graded on their conduct, automotive knowledge, and ability to trouble shoot, that is, to locate and fix the car part causing trouble.

BOB RAGAN goes directly where the trouble is found. Positioned underneath this model, he hopes to fix a fellow student's car.

Mechanics Repair Community Autos

THESE AUTO MECHANICS STUDENTS are examining a 1957 Ford engine donated by the Kelley Williams Ford Motor Company. Part of their semester test will be based on their ability to find and repair trouble spots.

MR. DON WHITE SHOWS his students how the job is done as he works on a 1949 Chevrolet engine. A graduate of Oklahoma State University, he received his B.S. and majored in industrial arts, machine shop, and woodworking. "If the student has not learned, the teacher has not taught," believes Mr. White. His hobby is metal and wood lathe turning. During a three and a half year period in the Naval Air Force, he worked with guided missiles.

Woodworking Echoes With Hammers, Saws

CLASSES of Mr. C. W. Ridgway specialize each year in making wooden clip boards. While attending KSTC, Emporia, Mr. Ridgway majored in Industrial Arts and Physical Education. Having a farm in Tonganoxie, Mr. Ridgway delights in growing roses and strawberries.

Woodworking boys might be found making a clipboard or a coffee table. They learn the fundamentals of woodworking and using the machines to cut and smooth boards. As they graduate into second year, more details and intricate designs are practiced. Each fall brings a new and more difficult challenge to the youth who dreamed of doing woodwork with his pen knife and a stick.

MAKING CLIPBOARDS is an annual project for boys' woodworking classes. The clipboards are not too difficult to make and are handy for holding notebook paper.

USING A SAW is essential for woodworking. Boys practice with several types of saw as they finish their projects.

Mechanical drawing prepares students for vocations in engineering and architecture. Beginning artists find it difficult to acquire a sense of balance in reproducing plates. The course, which is offered for three years, involves the ability to master the use of drawing instruments. An advanced class produced intricate freehand drawings this year. Silence and concentration are needed for a creative atmosphere.

EXCEPTION TO THE RULE is Pat Curran who adds the woman's touch to the course of mechanical drawing. Enjoying this systematic art, she plans to continue her work in the field of architecture.

Architects and Engineers Study Drawing

MR. RONALD HALL believes in working each day as it comes. He says that students should learn to get along with one another; they should develop disciplined minds, and they should learn subject matter. After attending Kansas State University, Mr. Hall went to K.S.T.C., Pittsburg, where he received his B.S. and M.S. in education. Industrial Arts was his major. Special interests of this smiling teacher are gardening and bowling.

LABORING OVER HIS COPY of a detailed door frame is Paul Smith, third year mechanical drawing student. He will have eight hours to complete this assignment and meet his appointed deadline.

Equipment Supports Electrical Theory

First-year students of Mr. Don Froelich's electricity classes learn the fundamental laws and theories of electricity and the uses of basic electronic equipment. Building a radio can be a project of second-year students to earn extra credit. These students also learn how to assemble and use a power supply which changes alternating current to the direct current needed for electronic equipment.

DAILY LECTURING IS part of the classroom activities for Mr. Don Froelich, teacher of electricity and automotive information. He received his B.S. in Industrial Education at Kansas State and has the ability to teach seven different courses. Mr. Froelich works with his amateur radio and short wave set in his spare time. His call number is WOKXJ.

HAVING ACQUIRED his basic training in the theory of electricity, Ronnie Lee works on an amplifier. Shopwork is combined with lectures to supply an ample foundation in electricity.

EQUIPMENT is of major importance to Mr. Froelich's electricity classes. Here he demonstrates a high voltage oscillator. Students must keep up with all current topics.

COMPLETING HER SIXTH YEAR as a Physical Education teacher at W.H.S., Miss Mary Hughes finds enjoyment in her work. She feels it offers training for both, the body and mind. Miss Hughes has traveled across the United States as well as in three of her neighboring countries. A K.U. graduate she earned her B.A. and M.A. degrees with a major in Physical Education.

TO THE DRESSING ROOM charge these physical education girls as the final whistle is blown for the end of class.

Physical Recreation Interests Girls

BADMINTON IS DEMONSTRATED for the rest of the class to show the use of different techniques and plays. As each new sport is introduced, the girls study special skills to learn to play it correctly. When they practice, themselves, they will put this into action.

Girls practice good sportsmanship in physical education classes. They have relay races and play volleyball, basketball, and badminton. Calisthenics and tumbling also fill part of their time.

Physical education is a requirement which must be filled for graduation. After having one year of the class, girls are eligible to be student assistants for at least nine weeks. Most of the assistants' duties involve leading exercises and helping with demonstrations of a new sport.

Conditioning and building the body, developing co-ordination, and learning the fundamentals of sports games are the main objectives of girls' physical education. They also study first aid techniques and its importance.

Boys Enjoy Sports, Learn First Aid

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION is practiced by boys' physical education classes as part of first aid.

Competitive games create good sportsmanship in boys' physical education classes. Practice in every phase of sports is given to the boys in addition to a detailed study of rules. First aid is taught and by the end of the year, every boy should pass a test enabling him to receive a first aid card.

Exercises begin each day's activities. These prepare the boys for the hard-playing which follows. Physical education offers a break in the student's classroom schedule, as well as refreshing him for the studies to come.

FIRST AID is only a part of Mr. Perk Reitemeier's physical education classes. He feels that if things are presented to the students in an intelligent and worthwhile manner, they will enjoy school and accept it as more of a challenge. Mr. Reitemeier majored in health and physical education at Kansas State and received his B.S. and M.S.

BASKETBALL IS A FAVORITE sport in boys' physical education classes. These amateur players are practicing guard positions.

Student Life

We were Wildcats on the go in this a year of action, a year of change. Our bursting vitality, our thriving traditions and our transformation into a senior high brightened all facets of student life.

We were Washington, cheering our football team in the rain and raising the fieldhouse roof during basketball games. Tense athletic competition sparked our pride in being Wildcats.

We were responsible citizens of our school, governing ourselves through the Student Council and the Student Planning Board.

We were teenagers having fun. Hatchet Ball's "Ice Palace" and Homecoming's float provided distinctive backgrounds for the crowning of our royalty. The Death and Life of Larry Benson and Oklahoma added the impact and vigor of live drama to our social activities.

Our new spirit put a bounce in our steps and gave a new meaning to our lives as students of Washington High.

IMPRESSIONS of attending an evening extracurricular event were had by students as they entered school on dark, winter mornings.

AAHH! HOME AT LAST! Weary David McNiel, junior, flops thankfully down for an afternoon snooze. Feeling effects of our half-day schedule which began at 7:00 A.M., many sleepy Wildcats refreshed themselves with forty winks after school while homework waited.

Washington Goes . . .

"Late to bed, early to rise!" Surely this was not an uncommon encounter during the school year.

Sharing our school with the junior highs soon became a reality when construction was not complete on their schools. It was not until second semester that we were able to claim our school "just ours."

Rising before the sun became an accepted part of school life, as did tentative schedules. Going to school from 7 to 12 left the whole afternoon to do as we pleased.

Only Half the Day

THERE IS NO WAITING for the bell during the two months Coronado Junior High shares the school with the senior high. Teachers synchronize their watches carefully in order to let students out of class on schedule.

ON JANUARY 23rd students didn't go home for lunch but ate in the cafeteria. Previously the cafeteria served only people participating in after-school activities.

"HI! DEE ANN!" Barbara French yells to DeeAnn Schoenig. With the junior highs finished, students can have after-school activities and can even yell in the halls.

Tradition Prevails in Unique Festivity

Flashing red convertibles and a royal float composed of 28,000 red and white tissue flowers helped to initiate a new Homecoming tradition for 1960. Student Council was in charge of the gala festivities for the first time.

As the band played "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," royalty, attendants, escorts, and crown bearers paraded through an aisle formed by the banner girls, varsity, reserve, and sophomore cheerleaders. Meanwhile members of the pep club formed "Homecoming Queen 1960."

Wildcat alumni and fans crowded the stadium to capacity to see the defeat of Shawnee-Mission North in a spine-tingling football game.

Staff Turns Gym Into Ice Palace

Mid-winter set the theme with a pretty queen, a handsome king and a royal court to match. This was the 1961 Hatchet Ball.

"Ice Palace," was an imaginative fantasy land created by the yearbook staff with the cooperation of the stagecraft class and the art department. This crew of workers started transforming our gymnasium into a winter wonderland far before the sun came up. Hanging sheets of fiberglass, painting murals, making a bandstand for Les Copley's orchestra, constructing a water fountain, and erecting a reflecting sphere were jobs to be completed before the royal event.

Selected from the senior class by an all-school vote, five royal couples spent the two weeks prior to the ball in vigorous and colorful campaigning for the goal of being elected King and Queen of the 1961 Hatchet.

SHOWERED WITH CONFETTI, the Homecoming Royalty, Band, and Banner girls joined in the American Royal Parade.

DEBATERS anxiously await their trip to State. Our team brought home a trophy for winning second place.

Washington Is On the Go

From athletic events to scholastic challenges, Washington was heralded near and far as students carried their banner of leadership to inter-school events. From summer college workshops to fall science projects at the K.U. Medical Center, students displayed production of quality in extra scholastic efforts. Conventions and conferences gave the opportunity to demonstrate our training as leaders among members of a generation, not a school.

"Wildcats are constantly on the go" to learn, to lead, and to laugh. Education in social leadership was continually on exhibition as Wildcats emerged from Bethel to show others what a school of high scholastic standards can produce.

NATION-WIDE TV pictures our marching band and banner-girls at Kansas University's annual Band Day ceremonies held each fall. Band members and bannergirls sightsee before the Syracuse-K.U. football game.

DURING THE year the Madrigal sings before various community groups. To promote the sale of Oklahoma tickets they sing before the Washington High School P.T.A. Other groups they sang before are the Realtors Board, Downtown Optimists, and the Monday Club.

Student Council Strives to Bring Self-Government to Student Body

"Student Council has three primary objectives: to express student opinion, to administer the Student Council fund, and to aid and cooperate with the administration and faculty in matters pertaining to student welfare," explains Marvin DeGross, this year's president.

Also leading our student governing body were Gary Grazda, vice-president; Jeanne Gray, secretary; and Dan Adams, treasurer.

Working through sixteen committees, Council members published a handbook containing information on Washington, registered student cars, and worked on a major project.

For the first time, the Student Council also had complete charge of the 1960 Homecoming. Plans for the 1961 Homecoming are already under way.

Brighter futures beckoned Wildcats this year because of the "inspiration and perspiration" of the Student Planning Boards.

To help students make wise choices of careers and colleges, the Planning Boards sponsored College Night January 26, College Day January 30, and Career Day in April. The various programs were tailored to each homeroom's individual needs and interests.

Guiding the Sophomore Student Planning Board were Del Simcox, chairman; and Janet Schlenker, secretary. Mel O'Connor, chairman; and Marion Gray, secretary, led the Junior Planning Board. Officers of the Senior Board were Terry Ray, chairman; and Judy Srader, secretary.

"That's not Larry Benson!" After returning from the Korean War, a boy astounds the whole town when he arrives. He believes he is Larry Benson, and remembers incidents about the townspeople and the Benson family.

Larry and a boy named Dan became close friends in the army. When Larry was killed, Dan temporarily lost his mind. When he regained his mental balance, he thought that he was Larry Benson and that Dan had died.

When the Benson's realized what had happened, they decided to accept this boy into their family in place of their son.

'BEST WAY Mable knows to tell Larry he's welcome," explains Walter Potter to Freda Benson.

"THEY DO LOOK ALIKE, except for the eyes," explains Mary Ellen and Susan.

Stagecraft Boosts Quality Production

Junior play tryouts start the wheels turning smoothly toward a completed production.

After the cast has been chosen, the group spends time working, laughing, and at the same time, improving their dramatic abilities. Moments of despair and desperation are always found in the last few moments before the director breathes a heavy sigh, then, with fingers crossed, and expectations high, says "curtain going up!"

Wearied nights of rehearsal seem minor as cast and crew members stand backstage after the final presentation. Each heart is filled with happiness, but there is little time for reminiscence, because already plans are in the making for an even better play next time!

"GOSH, THIS SURE IS MESSY!" say Cathy Burnett, Rosemary Barfield, and Peggy Higgins as they remove make-up after the performance.

Washington Vocal Music Presents

IT'S A BEAUTIFUL Oklahoma mornin' when Curly comes callin' on his sweetheart Laurey. Curly tells Aunt Eller that he's plannin' on takin' Laurey to the Box Social. But Laurey's pride won't 'llow her to let Curly know she's interested in him, so she's already goin' with Jud Fry. Curly cain't see why Laurey's so uppity. Why, he's the best bronc buster and steer roper in the territory, and handsome besides.

"Oklahoma, O.K.!" sang the cast in the last act of Rodger and Hammerstein's rousing, action-packed musical; capacity crowds both nights heartily agreed with this sentiment. The two-act show was presented at Washington February 17 and 18 by the vocal music department.

Preparation for the highly successful performance began long before opening night. Leads in the show started rehearsal before Christmas vacation; the entire cast began work early in February. Backstage work, including the building of the superb sets, was done by the stagecraft class. Dramatics students took care of the make-up of cast members. Judy Nastav, aided by technical advice from Peggy Dewey, a '60 graduate of WHS, planned the choreography for the lively dances.

With the profits from Oklahoma, the vocal music department was able to buy a long-desired custom-made stereo set.

"EVERYTHINGS UP TO DATE in Kansas City," Will Parker reports. He's been to the fair steer ropin'. Went and won the fifty dollar prize too. Will's mighty anxious to show the presents he bought with the prize money, but he's more anxious to see his promised bride, Ado Annie.

LAUREY WON'T ADMIT to nobody that she wants to go to the box social with Curly, or that really she's kinda scared of Jud. She feels purty bad when Curly goes off with that Cummin's girl. She tells her girlfriends that many a new day will dawn before she lets a man upset her.

But Ado Annie's taken up with the peddler man, Ali Hakim—that's Persian—Annie's a girl who cain't say no when a feller starts to talk purty, and who never thinks of no one less'n he's with her. Ali and Annie come a visitin' and Ali tries to sell Aunt Eller a pair of fancy drawers.

ALI HAKIM IS a bit unwillin' to oblige the plans for matrimony by Annie and her father. But the barrel of Andrew Carnes' shot gun changes his mind. "It's a scandal and an outrage how a gal gets a husband today," Ali and the boys complain.

WHEN THE BIDDIN' for the box lunches start, Ali Hakim gets off the hook by buyin' Annie's lunch for fifty dollars, which was the price old Andrew set for a man marrin' his daughter. Will's still got his prize money so he gets to keep Ado Annie. Jud is determined to bid more than anybody for Laurey's lunch. Curly sells his saddle and his horse to raise Jud's bets. By biddin' all the money he's saved workin' on the farm, Jud forces

Gridsters Battle

An opening game win proved to be a prediction of things to come as the Washington football squad compiled a season record of five wins and four losses. It was their first winning season since the fall of 1958.

The Wildcats placed third in the Sunflower League with a 2-2 record, holding victories over Shawnee-Mission East and North.

Halfback Charlie Franklin was selected the Kansan "Player of the Week," and received the highest recognition of "Player of the Year" and high scorer for the area.

Senior Greg Wilder was selected as the Kansan's "Player of the Week." Mr. Wilson was chosen as "Coach of the Week" for the Wildcats' win over Shawnee-Mission North.

Preceding the final game of the season, the team selected Ken Smith and Floyd Ashley as Co-Captains to lead the team next year.

ANOTHER SHAWNEE-MISSION LANCER is brought down by end, Richard Shannon, as the 'Cats record their second Sunflower League win.

QUARTERBACK TERRY CAMPBELL, No. 11, executes a dive play in the Argentine game. It was parents' night at the stadium and the team responded with an 18-12 victory.

WITH A SATISFIED SMILE, Coach Emerson Wilson watches as his team starts four-game winning streak by downing Shawnee Mission North.

CALCULATING THE NEXT PLAY, Coach William Mondt analyzes the progress of his linemen in a winning effort against Shawnee-Mission East.

Two Colorado graduates, Emerson Wilson and William Mondt, coached the Varsity squad for the second consecutive year. A winning season would not have been possible without these two men who spent many hours drawing up plays, defenses and building a winning team. Mr. Wilson coached the backfield while Mr. Mondt spent his time instructing the line.

Right-hand men to the coaches were the team's student managers, Walter Modrell, Gary Blackman, Fred Garlett and Terry Ray, head manager.

Issuing football equipment and caring for it, doing laundry after each game and taking care of injuries are a few of the many responsibilities that these boys have.

EVERY SCREW HAS TO BE TIGHTENED, as the managers, Gary Blackman, Walter Modrell, Terry Ray, and Fred Garlett, check equipment before a game.

ALL EYES ARE ON THE COIN, as the 1960 Tri-Captains, Mike Whittier, Gary Cindrich, and Greg Wilder, wait for the deciding flip.

Mike Whittier, second year letterman, was the starting left end and cornerback. He was also a member of the basketball and baseball team and served as president of the W-Club.

Gary Cindrich, missing several games because of a leg injury, played halfback on defense and on offense, also. The team elected him Homecoming King.

Greg Wilder started the season at tackle, but when the backfield was hit by injuries he was moved to fullback. As the Wildcats kicker, the fullback can take credit for all extra points.

MR. WILSON AND MR. MONDT diagram Turner game strategy which proved to be successful as the Wildcats won 13-7.

They Hit Hard and Moved Fast

Washington's forward wall, with an average weight of 175 pounds, was out-weighted in nearly all of the games, but was still able to open holes for the backs. The biggest man on the line was senior John Wasko, who was on the first string All-Area team.

The backfield was probably one of the most potent in several years. Two 180-pound seniors, Greg Wilder, and Charlie Franklin carried most of the load, with another senior, Terry Campbell, calling the signals. Franklin was also a member of the All-Area team.

Their Future Looks Bright

PLANNING AHEAD ON PAPER IS AN IMPORTANT PART of football. Coaches Clayton Wolfe and Tom Northrop discuss plays and defenses used during the sophomores winning streak.

In building for the future, the Sophomore football squad took a big step this year by winning all their gridiron games. The Wildkittens 5-0 record consisted of victories over Wyandotte's Red team and White team, Shawnee Mission East, and Shawnee Mission North, twice.

Sophomores Denny Watson, Charlie Adams, and Mickey Ray served as Tri-Captains.

NEXT YEAR'S TROPHY is the goal of Coach Hobart Neill. He worked with a young team this fall, which promises big records for the future.

Sixteen Cross Country men brought two varsity team victories to Washington this year. Mr. Hobart Neill coached the distance men to wins over Topeka and Turner.

Boys out for this fall sport ran from five to ten miles a day. Their training consisted of one and one-half mile warm-ups, pace quarters and distance workouts.

Returning lettermen for next year's team are Loren Crown, John Dormois, Dan Harris, Phil Miller, Tom Campbell, Keith Stanley, sophomores; and Jerry Widener, junior.

LONE SENIOR ON THE VARSITY SQUAD, Tom Barrett, served as captain of the 1960 Cross Country team.

In '60-'61 Season

For the second straight year the Washington basketball team finished with a 6-13 mark in regular season play. During the 1960-61 season Wildcats participated in the first Campus High Tourney and came away with a first place finish in the consolation round. In the regional meet held at Shawnee-Mission East the Wildcats upset Turner in their first game and finished in fourth place.

Lettermen returning to next year's squad as seniors will be Bruce Crockett, George Knittle, and Jim Murray. This year there were only two senior lettermen: Terry Campbell and Mike Whittier.

STRETCHING FROM TOE TO FINGER TIP, Bruce Crockett sinks one for the Wildcats. In this the last game of the season the 'Cats fought into a overtime but lost to Shawnee Mission North by one point.

Varsity Has Rough Go But Never Gives Up

Wildcat rooters became aware that it wasn't always the final score that was important but the way the game was played. This was proven when the small 'Cat team came within one point of the tallest and roughest squads in the area.

Three seniors held special places in the Washington '60-'61 hardwood sport. Mike Whittier and Terry Campbell, 'Cat players, staged a big part in the roundball contests and Terry Ray, Manager, performed the behind-the-scene duties.

During his fourth year at Washington, Varsity Coach Richard Lee's usual starting five was a young line-up with Whittier and Campbell as the two lone seniors. Juniors Bruce Crockett, George Knittle, and Jim Murray completed the squad.

"A REAL SCRAPPER" well describes the Wildcat's smallest player, Terry Campbell. This two-year letterman pulled his team through many times.

TENSION MOUNTS HIGH as Varsity Coach Richard Lee and Reserve Coach Robert Wilson view the varsity squad during a tense spot in the game.

LETTERING AS MANAGER three years, Senior Terry Ray was always around when needed. Acting as Coach Lee's right arm, Terry was the handy man of the varsity squad.

TWO YEAR LETTERMAN, Mike Whittier, was one of the duet of senior roundballers to aid the starting five. His hustle and experience helped form the team's backbone.

Wildkittens Work

Another Washington team met a tough season in the form of the reserve roundball squad. Ending the year with a one win-fifteen loss record the Wildkittens had an extreme disadvantage of age and lack of experience.

Their lone win was over Lillis 60-52. The WHS reserves led the Irish through the entire contest and collected sixty points for the season's high-scoring game. High scorer for Coach Robert Wilson's reserves was Dennis Carter with 99 points. Jim Storey followed with 86 and Tom Campbell was third with 77.

FILLING THE VARSITY'S SHOES when the time comes won't be so tough for the reserve squad. Lots of practice and actual experience in reserve games prepare them. Sophomore Charles Adams, reaches high for the tip-off as the reserve team goes against Shawnee-Mission East.

Halfway through the season the Sophomore squad went full force into a winning streak and won six of their eight remaining games. These victories produced a record of 8 wins and 8 losses for the Wildkittens.

Bob Bailey led his team in scoring honors as he collected 101 points. Jim Folcroft was second with 97 and Gary Simpson gained 91 points.

Twenty boys played for the Kittens throughout the season. Jim Folcroft led the squad in rebounds with a total of 91.

The Kittens won three games in overtimes against Shawnee-Mission East, Leavenworth and North Kansas City.

"WINTER TRACK is a conditioner for spring track," states Coach Hobart Neill, who stresses hard work and continuous training.

Indoor track brought about another first in its 1961 season. Competing for the first time in inter-school competition the indoor men brought home a victorious record.

Dual meets were held on Saturday in the American Royal Building. The biggest victory of the season was the clean sweep over Bishop Meigs $84\frac{1}{3}$ - $72\frac{2}{3}$.

Sophomore Loren Crown, broke the indoor record for the 'Cats and Charles Johnson, senior, was a consistent double winner.

Highlights for Coach Hobart Neill's winter track squad were the Big 8 Indoor and State Indoor.

Gunners Capture Intramural Title

Teamwork, organization, and athletic ability, were interwoven by students who participated in the Boys' Basketball Intramurals of 1961. With each team choosing a captain to direct and coach their progress, they entered the contest with a ready heart to enjoy the sportsmanship games.

Physical education instructor, Clarence Reitemeier, organized the program and kept the official scores. The Champion team, The Gunners, was coached and captained by Ronald Aitkens, senior; second place was achieved by The Touchables. Teams participating in the program were The—Tiddlewinks, Expressos, Ramrods, Roadrunners, Rebels, Happy Hollow Five, Gold Fenders, Mafia, and Seven-ups.

REAL CHAMPS CAME through in this intramural contest as the Gunners won over the Touchables to take the honor of Intramurals Champion.

ONE POINT MADE THE difference at 3 of Washington's games. Wildcats learned to lose without feeling conquered; they learned to smile and be proud of a team that fought hard.

Organizations

Potential promised by Washington's fresh new tradition was realized in the activities of student organizations. These bodies afforded Wildcats the opportunity to enrich their education through the experience of working for and with other people.

We all felt pride when the cheers of the Pep Club stimulated an athletic victory. Individual talents were developed in the academically co-ordinated programs of the science, language, and fine arts clubs. Personal development and community service stood as the goals of Y-Teens, Horizon Club, Key Club, and Hi-Y. Membership in national honor societies rewarded those whose accomplishments were superior.

Together we worked and together we achieved.

WE'RE FROM WASHINGTON, couldn't be prouder! proclaims Cheryl Jarvis, reserve cheerleader, as the reserve team triumphs. Pep Club members support reserve games, as well as varsity.

Cardinal-red jackets jammed enthusiastically into waiting buses. The Pep Club was on its way. Over 400 Wildcats joined ranks to give their teams the support they deserved. They trekked to schools far and near so that they might see Washington win.

Eight officers, from all three classes, gave the club its organizational direction by planning pep rallies, pre-game sendoffs, a 200 mile bus trip to the Wichita Kaupan football game, and an outstanding system of membership regulation. They also planned the "1960 Queen" display, which was spelled out by Pep Club members at Homecoming.

Their efforts, combined with effective direction from sponsors Ralston, Hoskings, and Northrup, and an animated cheering section, let all know that we are the Wildcats, MIGHTY, MIGHTY, WILDCATS.

Pep Club Lifts

GUIDING THE PEP CLUB officers throughout the year are sponsors: Mr. Northrop, Mr. Ralston, and Mr. Hoskings.

"COME ON, YOU GUYS, get with it! We've got to win this game," urged Pep Club president, Barbara French. Gretchen Pomeranke, senior secretary; Ron Seney, senior vice-president; and Norma Roberts, club treasurer, assisted her in generating enthusiasm throughout the athletic season.

Spirits as Wildcats Fight for Victory

WASHINGTON NEEDS YOU urged junior Pep Club officers Marion Gray and Dorothy Reeves while convincing Doug Lindsay to join Pep Club.

WILDCAT JACKETS were sold by sophomore officers Diane Starbuck and Charlene Carter.

CHIEF ROOTERS in the student body were the Varsity Cheerleaders Linda Stanley, Denise Fiscus, Janice Klausen, Sally Smith, Pam Robinson, and Bonnie Hamilton.

Varsity, Reserves and Sophomores

SOPHOMORE CHEERLEADERS: Doris Clothier, Sherrie Martin, Suzanne Miller, Elaine Ellis, Sheryl Raglow, and Glenda Hord.

RESERVE CHEERLEADERS Vickey Gaster, Julona Powell, Carole Brown, Pat Miller, Carol Wilcox, and Cheryl Jarvis led yells for the Wildcat "B" Teams.

Lead Active Pep Club

Naturally noisy and exuberant crowds became a well co-ordinated cheering section under the skillful guidance of Washington's eighteen cheerleaders. Colorful posters and victory signs constructed by these girls greatly contributed to the general desire to win.

Varsity cheerleaders wore completely red uniforms in sharp contrast to the totally white reserve and the red and white sophomore outfits. But these uniforms were sometimes discarded in favor of football uniforms, witches' garb, and knight's armor during the production of pep rallies.

PAUSING DURING HALF-TIME behind the stands, cheerleaders Linda Stanley and Denise Fiscus model the latest in rainhats.

Marching feet of banner girls and the booming music of the pep band accentuated the cry for a Wildcat victory.

Ten vivacious girls tramped long miles over city streets and dusty football fields, heralding the arrival of Washington's Marching Band. Participation in the American Royal Parade and in K.U.'s Band Day program, highlighted by a brief appearance on a national television broadcast, climaxed a busy season.

Vigorous homage to our nation and our school was rendered by the Pep Band at each home basketball game. Their snappy music and crisp uniforms, added spirited rhythm to the roundball contests.

BANNER GIRLS: Gail Painter, Betty Ragan, Cindy Hicks, Barbara Mueller, Linda Logan, Trudie Odneal, Trella Whitaker, Sally Glandon, Connie McClain, and Terry Rothering.

Boys wearing letter sweaters with a round W-Club patch on the sleeve are members of Washington's letterman club.

Selling season tickets to football games, distributing game programs, and selling portable seats for athletic events were among the club's many services. On the social side, the boys sponsored a mixer, the spring W-Club dance, and held the annual "Chicken Fry" to round out the year's activities.

Parents and friends interested in the Washington athletic program make up the Quarterback Club. This organization, in its second year, held regular meetings with programs consisting of speakers and films.

LEADING THE marching band this year are Sherri Russ, Janice Horn, Linda Bray, Judy Cooke, Pennie Vossler, and Gwen Launer, majorettes.

Wildcats were delightfully entertained when Washington's band and majorettes marched onto the football field. Each home game began with its musical tribute to our nation and school. Half-time ceremonies included a Wild West show, complete with Indian raids and a dancing horse. Head majorette, Gwen Launer, managed the horse while giving a twirling exhibition. Homecoming was enhanced by the band's rendition of "I'll See You in My Dreams."

Concerts, marching in the American-Royal parade, KU Band Day, and the District Musical Festival rounded out the groups' activities.

Band hours also included training the cadet band. These students are prospective Varsity band members.

DEE ANN SCHOENIG and Barbara French work on Y-Teens posters.

With the freshmen now in the junior highs, Y-Teens this year unified the Junior and Senior clubs into one organization. The group's goals of Christian service and personal development are achieved through each member's active participation on one of eight committees: program, worship, membership, publicity, music, world fellowship, social, and service.

Needy families had their holidays brightened by Y-Teens contributions. Social fun alternated with community service as members staged a talent show and a semi-formal dance. Traditional heart-sister week and the combined Hi-Y, Y-Teens Christmas meeting rounded out a year of fun and accomplishment.

Gay Christmas stockings, made by Washington's Horizon Club members, brightened the holidays for children at a local orphanage. This organization was again practicing its specialization, rendering service to the school and community.

Social fun was not neglected as they threw a get-acquainted picnic in the fall and sponsored an all-school mixer. Buying and decorating a school Christmas tree not only gave the halls a gay atmosphere, but provided the opportunity for members to have fun while working for others.

Barbara Rodenbeck, president, led the club's activities, ably assisted by Pam Blackmer, vice-president; Judy Gearheart, secretary; and Marilyn Mendicki, treasurer.

Future Nurses Learn Medical Skills

Washington's Future Nurses Club enjoyed a successful year in promoting nursing as a career. More senior girls prepared to enter nursing and the related health fields than ever before in the school's history.

Field trips and visitation to hospitals and nursing schools helped to inform the members of the opportunities of maintaining the health of the people in the community. Some of the members observed a simulated operation at one of the local hospitals this year. People from the health professions spoke to club members.

Several of the members assist the nurse in her office during school hours. Their duties include making beds, helping to check eyes, and helping the students who come in when the nurse is out.

LEADING THE FUTURE NURSES are Roberta Kowalchuk, vice-president; Sharon Shobe, secretary-treasurer; and Joann Brougham, president.

Through Field Trips and Research

Experiences in science unattainable in the classroom are achieved through active Science Club membership. Members developed individual projects besides participating in group field trips to Kansas University, KU Med Center, the US Weather Bureau, and various business firms. Admittance qualifications require maintenance of good grades and active participation in scientific activities.

This year, the club adopted membership pins and cards.

Latin, French, and Spanish

LEADING THE LATIN CLUB activities this year are Norma Roberts, president; Gary Grazda, vice-president; Sheryl Raglow, secretary; and Linda Stanley, treasurer.

Colorful parties, dinners, and banquets made the scene for the foreign language clubs' social activities. French Club members attended the home of Peggy Higgins for their gala Mardi Gras celebrations while the Spanish Club enjoyed tacos, enchiladas, and tamales at the Spanish Club dinner. "Ab ova ad mala"—from "eggs to apples"—described the Roman Banquet. Latin Club members followed ancient Roman customs of dressing in togas while first-year members dressed as slaves.

SEEMING TO ENJOY the Latin Club meetings, these members make themselves at home.

LEADING A LARGE CLUB like Latin Club is a big job for one person. Presiding at one of many meetings is Norma Roberts, president.

Blending, pronunciation, and development of good tone quality are some of the many voice devices employed by the sixty members of A Cappella Choir.

Each day the choir practiced to prepare for concerts, the district music festival, and singing engagements before community groups. Songs ranging from the spiritual "There's No Hiding Place Down Here" to the humorous "Lobster Quadrille" were included in their program.

Mr. James Ralston, director, also led the choir in the annual Christmas Vespers. Inspirational music, highlighted by a candlelit procession, enhanced the beauty of the holiday season.

A thrilling presentation of Rodgers and Hammerstein's Oklahoma climaxed the choir's musical season. Gay tunes and lively dances animated this tale of the development of the Oklahoma Territory.

Madrigal Society membership is an honor acquired by the leading singers in Washington's A Cappella Choir. The group practiced during homeroom period and after school at the members' home to prepare for entertaining at club meetings and concerts and for entering the District Music Festival.

Membership in the Washington Singers provides students with the training necessary for future Madrigal membership. These vocalists also sang at concerts and in the District Music Festival.

Apt fingers and creative minds make up the members of the Art Club. High grades are also essential, as members have to maintain a 2 average to keep their membership. Usually, only advanced art students may gain membership, but exceptional first year students are readily accepted. A new law was passed making it possible for former art students to join also.

When the group went to Hallmark, they not only had the opportunity to look at the art work, but also learned some of the duties of the commercial artist. The club also took a field trip to K.U. for further art study.

Hi-Y Instills Christian Ideals in Members

One of the leading clubs at Washington is the Hi-Y. It is a branch of the YMCA which supports Christian thinking and conduct in daily life. Members raised funds through operation of a school supply booth before school and by selling Optimist Christmas tree cards. Our Hi-Y basketball team was one of the top teams in the city as the players earned an impressive record against rival clubs.

PRESS CLUB officers Rick Shannon, vice-president; Marilynn Mendicki, secretary; and Trella Whitaker, president, look over material for a Press Club meeting.

Promoting interest in journalism is the main goal of the Press Club. On the social end, they sponsored the annual Twirp Week, and a mixer after a basketball game. In December, Press Club members and dates were featured on Heart-of-America Bandstand.

Clicking cameras is the sign of Photo Club members. Because of our crowded half-day sessions, the dark-room wasn't attainable until second semester, but dark rooms in students' homes were available for producing pictures for the Washingtonian and Hatchet.

BILL CRUDEN seems to be having a little trouble finding the right angle for that picture.

PRESS CLUB members are seeking various methods to increase the club's treasury. The general opinion of these members is that the club plan to sponsor a cookie sale during the coming TWIRP week festivities at W.H.S.

Conditions in room 208 look like a typical newspaper room, but the situation is always well in hand. It is the usual commotion necessary in publishing the Washingtonian. This job, which is the sole responsibility of the staff, requires a good deal of time both in and out of school; thus the students must be free from many of the normal classroom restrictions in order to carry out their individual tasks.

Quality Hatchet Through

Washington's development into a senior high school was captured by the Hatchet theme, "Developing New Traditions."

Creation of a yearbook class provided the opportunity to more fully plan and develop Hatchet activities. Close cooperation among the supervisory, editorial, sectional, and business facets of the staff produced a quality yearbook.

Sponsoring the Hatchet Ball, "Ice Palace," gave the staff members an additional outlet for their creative energies.

ANOTHER VICTORY COMING UP! Wildcat debaters leave town to attend an invitational debate tournament.

SCHOOL-WIDE homeroom programs given by debaters informed Wildcats of the problems of youths and the school. Mike Brizendine, Terry Haggard, and Judy Holden discuss early marriage.

SMOOTH-SPEAKING and quick-thinking Washington debaters brought home trophies eight times last year. This state-wide recognition of our debater's abilities came about after a year's study and practice bolstered by a continual team effort. Novices Cheryl Jarvis and Gary Simpson display the year's winnings.

Debaters Top in District, Second in State

Wildcat debaters beat the best, winning the district championship and placing second in the state meet. Third place trophies from Topeka and Ft. Scott, Wichita Southeast's and Valley Center's second place awards, a fourth in the Sunflower league novice tournament, plus a first place ranking in the Washington novice preceded the final state victories.

Successful arguments on so broad a topic as "Resolved: that the United Nations should be significantly strengthened," required a persistent study of international politics, disarmament proceedings, and the crisis in Cuba, Laos, and the Congo.

But the debaters did not limit their activities to competitive tournaments. Homeroom debates explored the problems of teenhood and school improvements. Programs and debates given before civic groups expanded the community's awareness of Washington's continually expanding academic program.

PRACTICE brought results for novice debaters Glenda Hord and Carol Wilcox, winners at two tournaments.

Emphasizes Extra Responsibilities

Much of Washington's new vitality came from the conscientious effort of her students to maintain high academic standards and to render useful services to the student body as a whole. From these outstanding Wildcats came the members of National Honor Society.

Juniors receiving this award were those in the top ten per cent of their class scholastically who had actively participated in the betterment of their school.

Those who excelled in debate and journalism earned membership in national honorary organizations. Debaters combined skills in the persuasive arts with good scholarship to receive their National Forensic League. Scholastically outstanding and industrious journalists earned Quill and Scroll pins.

Active High School Participation

Washington's forty-three top senior students were awarded National Honor Society membership this year. After pledging themselves to be honorable, to serve, and to uphold scholarship, these students received the pins and cards proclaiming them to be honor students.

These Wildcats were really on the go, maintaining a high grade average while leading our organizations and rendering service to our school. Theirs was not only a reward for individual achievement, but for the group effort and co-operation that makes a high school achieve excellence.

Only those students whose scholastic rank, character, and school participation were well above the average were selected for membership.

MARGARET WILLIAMS, Martin Thomas, and Barbara French, two year N.H.S. members, check their grade cards to see if they are eligible.

Every man a Wildcat . . .

Student Body

Dynamic forces generated by this our student body triggered the development of Washington's new traditions. We learned from a curriculum rich in subject matter, basic in fundamental value. We laid down the pattern for organizational activities that benefitted ourselves and our school. We built a student government and assumed the responsibility of regulating our own actions. We worked hard so that we could have fun.

We were a thousand faces, a thousand minds, a thousand goals and together we were Washington Senior High School—1961.

Sophs Look Forward to Upperclassmanship

After two years of being the youngest class, the Sophomores eagerly look forward to the lordly realm of upperclassmen. Leading the class were Larry Becker, President; Loren Crown, Vice-President; Charlene Carter, Treasurer; and Judy Lindsey, Secretary.

Participating in student government, the Sophs elected Glenda Hord, Dick Anderson, Tom Campbell, and Pat Miller as Student Council Representatives.

Homeroom representatives for the year were Judy Cooke, Kathy Gates, Alta Grosstephan, Diane Hawkins, Cheryl Jarvis, Barbara McReynolds, Suzanne Miller, Shirley Nutt, Bob Sands, Gus Vedros, and Carol Wilcox.

Twenty-two students and their class counselor, Mr. Wesley Beck, composed the Sophomore Student Planning Board. Their theme this year was "The World of 1970," which they viewed through the economic, social, and educational trends.

BRIGHT SMILES and pretty dresses decorated the 1960 Homecoming festivities. Sophomore class attendants, Pat Miller and Loren Crown, walk down the royal aisle at the dance following the Shawnee-Mission East football game.

Tearing through the paper banner, the Sophomore cheerleaders led the team through the tunnel of cheering pepsters.

Soph Gridsters Smash Rivals

Six wins and one loss! Carrying almost a perfect score this football season, the Sophomore gridsters trampled arch-rival Wyandotte 19-6, and 7-0; Shawnee-Mission North 6-0 and 20-0; Shawnee-Mission East 26-6; and Turner 13-0. The only defeat of the season was their loss to the Argentine Reserves 12-0. The team was capably led through the past football season by Mr. Clayton Wolfe and Mr. Tom Northrop.

Cheering the Wildkittens were Glenda Hord, Sheryl Raglow, Sherrie Martin, Doris Clothier, Suzanne Miller, and Elaine Ellis. The six girls sparkled in new uniforms of white pleated skirts and cardinal red crew neck sweaters.

Three Down One to Go

Busy juniors took the helm as vice-captains of a rapidly growing senior high school. Heading the class were President, Terry Wilson; Vice-president, Floyd Ashley; Secretary, Cindy Hicks; and Treasurer, Sharon Hotujac. They had a big responsibility in planning the Junior-Senior Prom. It was also their duty to organize and conduct all class projects. Mr. John Meek, head sponsor, guided the officers in the completion of their year's work.

Student Council members, Dorothy Reeves, Bonnie Hamilton, Pam Robinson, and Bill Cunningham, along with homeroom representatives from eleven homerooms, carried ideas of the junior class to the Student Government. This group of hard-working juniors has been indirectly responsible for many of the changes this year.

Student Planning Board, a newly organized function this year at WHS, claimed two members from each homeroom. Mel O'Connor was elected as chairman of the SPB and Marion Gray, secretary.

Cheering on the varsity squad were Pam Robinson, Bonnie Hamilton, and Janice Klausen. Reserve pepsters were Carole Brown (head cheerleader) and Vickie Gaster.

SHARON HOTUJAC and Jerry Carson represented the junior class in the Homecoming as attendants for 1961.

IN CONTINUANCE of a new tradition at Washington, the juniors sponsored another all-school play, "The Death and Life of Larry Benson," which proved to be another highlight of the junior year. Bonnie Hamilton and Deanie Stahl were two of the usherettes.

SENIOR OFFICERS

Mike Whittier
Joann Brougham
Gary Cindrich
Dan Adams

Graduation is just another stepping stone to the realization of one's goals. On May 26, 279 seniors will embark on the threshold of new adventures. By taking specific courses, we have prepared ourselves to accept this responsibility.

With our changing world of activities came leaders. Dan Adams guided the class as president aided by Mike Whittier, vice-president; Joanne Brougham, secretary; and Gary Cindrich, treasurer. Mr. Robert Wilson gave assistance and co-operation to the seniors as their head sponsor.

Marvin DeGroff headed the Student Council with Gary Grazda, vice-president; Jeanne Gray, secretary; and Dan Adams, treasurer. Representing the seniors on the council were Trella Whitaker, Pete Nelson, Denise Fiscus, and Sally Smith. Judy Nastav was chosen Washington's delegate to Girls' State; Gary Grazda and Marvin DeGroff attended Boys' State.

As high school life fades into a memory, we look to the future with confidence.

SENIOR RING COMMITTEE MEMBERS studied several types and styles of rings before deciding on two for the class to vote on. Sharon Hansen, Dan Adams, Linda Stanley, Mike Whittier, Marvin DeGroff, John Turk, Sally Smith, Betty Ragan, Joanne Brougham, Barbara French, and Gail Painter knew theirs was a difficult job as the ring will represent high school activities to all students.

MAKING PROM DECORATIONS for the tables are Betty Ragan and Sandy Dueker. Behind them towers the most outstanding attraction of the dance. This is the Buddha which the seniors of this year spent many long hours constructing. "Oriental Dynasty" was chosen as the theme. By use of Chinese murals and mobiles, the entire gym was transformed into an atmosphere of the Far East.

MEETING EACH WEEK to organize senior activities is the Student Planning Board. Two representatives from each homeroom were chosen to relate the ideas of their fellow students. Among their many duties are reporting information about college scholarships and measuring each senior for his cap and gown. Various committees complete the last minute details for the class party.

In Memoriam

JOHN STEVEN BAIRD
(June 2, 1943—December 23, 1959)

By standards of time I didn't know Steve long, only four years, but in that time he made a lasting impression on me. Steve had a wit and presence of mind that placed him at home in any surroundings. He was capable of discussing stamps and Plato with the same knowledge that he discussed golf and tennis. There was a quality in Steve's laughter that was contagious, and he was laughing most of the time. Steve's accomplishments are too numerous to list, his faults too few to mention. He was an excellent student but Steve had something that isn't found in books; Steve knew how to be a friend. Even when things weren't going well for him he was interested in what I was doing. Steve always gave the impression that he was glad to see me; to some people this may not mean much, to me it's the greatest feeling in the world. Steve is gone now; he won't greet me any more. To Steve the pain of his body is a thing of the past; he is no longer held down by it; his soul is free.

By Jim Cook

They link community and school.

Community

Our community is the foundation and guiding spirit of our school. This community sprawls over a suburban area which covers nearly 40 square miles northwest of Kansas City, Kansas. Lying between the Kaw and Missouri rivers, our district serves families whose mailing addresses are Edwardsville, Muncie, Bethel, and Kansas City, Kansas.

Businessmen and women of this community serve our patrons and support our school. Such community responsibility helped us this year in our surge forward.

Tying school and community together are five citizens who devote their time to helping build a better Washington. They are the Washington District High School Board of Education: Gene Mueller, John Whittier, Vern Watson, Curtis Baker, and Alfred Brush.

Dear Bob,

Remember our freshman year in Algebra I class.
We sure did have ^{fun}. It's too bad I don't have you in any classes this year (this crazy bus!).

Dear Bob, real

Idiocy Bob!

It has really been
loads of fun, knowing you.
Best of luck in the future. Be good! but have fun!
Gyle Lodge

Dear Bob,

It's been nice
knowing you these past few years. We've had a ball on the line. See you at the drink-in!!
Come down and see me
sometime this summer.

Just because I'm a senior doesn't have to mean I'll never see you again! Best wishes! Love, Laydian Barber

Bob,

Here we are on the

patchet! Hurray! I look forward to working with you next year and wish you the best of everything always.

Dear Bob
 The kidding I really have had a lot of fun in Math this year with you. I know I haven't learned a thing (as my grade card can prove) you are a real good kid and I want to wish you all of the luck in the world,
 and best wishes too.

Since all the verses sound the same I'll just be cool and sign my name

Dear Bob, Tom Sheble

I had a real blast knowing you this year. I hope to see you next year too. I guess
 I won't ever forget math class and some of the notes we wrote to a certain person ha ha ha.
 Be a good guy and you will go far in the world.

Bob
 I hope to see you next year

Dear Bob,
 Well another
 year is past a blast
 time & we have only one more yr. to go hope. I have had a lot of fun this year. I'm sorry we haven't been able to have more classes together. I remember my freshman year you and me to that day & I had to be stupid & know you down
 some times I wish I had another chance, but that is life in a Big City. Best of wishes & luck.

We were had a

swell time in math class this year, with those free "Bugger"
show and all. Hope to see you next year.

Best of Luck

Bob,
I have enjoyed knowing you the past few years and I hope we can have some more dinner together next year.
Good Luck in the Future.

DRESSED IN BLACK gowns and colored hoods to show their degrees, faculty members followed the seniors onto the field during commencement exercises.

Seniors and Faculty Join in Graduation

Graduation found teachers and seniors alike clad in caps and gowns. This was the first time teachers participated in a WHS graduation.

Addressing the parents, friends, and graduates were the class' top five in scholastic standards. They were: Loydean Barker, Sharon Hansen, Mary Kay Cordill, Margaret Williams, and Ralph Hile.

Graduation exercises were preceded by the Senior Sermon, May 21.

TOP FIVE SCHOLARS of the class expressed the parting thoughts before diplomas were distributed.

A CAPPELLA CHOIR members sang at commencement exercises. The singers clad in grey seem to have their minds on "this is the last time I'll sing with this group."

Seniors Enjoy End of School!

The Senior signing party started things rolling for the class of '61. After signing annuals for three hours Thursday night, May 18, the class awaited the last week of school.

Class breakfast, assembly, and graduation practice made May 19 special for the seniors. At the assembly, Jim Cook and Frank Janzen read the prophecy and will, which they composed. Sally Smith, Patsy Burnett, and Ron Seney pantomimed records, and the Girls' Octette (Sandy Dueker, Gail Painter, Denise Fiscus, Gretchen Pamerenke, Jeannie Gray, Gwen Chaffin, Marilyn Mendicki, and Pat Cooper) sang several numbers.

After the assembly the class practiced for graduation and then were dismissed from their remaining classes.

ATTENTIVE, proud, sad . . . these were the graduates of the class of '61.

Prom Reflects Air of Early Spring in

Dancing through Majestic Gardens, Wildcats enjoyed the most eagerly-awaited event of spring—the Junior-Senior Prom, April 21. In a break with tradition, the Prom this year was held in the Grand Ballroom of the Town House Hotel. In previous years, it had been held at school.

Newcomers were greeted in the lobby by a picturesque fountain; other festive decorations carried out the theme. Wearing dresses of all colors and debonaire dinner jackets, the students danced to the music of John Elliot's band.

The Prom Committee, composed of juniors, had responsibility for the event. The Committee was headed by Marion Gray and Terry Wilson. A night of gaiety and fun that will be long remembered was due to the imagination and hard work of this committee.

THESE ARE THE HOURS which will be held in memory for the years of the future. Couples share their happy moments with friends as they make plans for after the dance.

Majestic Gardens

UPON DESCENDING THE STEPS into the grand hall of the Town House Hotel, the vision of a glowing spring evening appears. Couples step along the gray-stoned walks about the fountain which is surrounded by potted palms and bright flowers.

PRIDE AND JOY shine on the faces of the juniors now that the night is finally here. After all the work and problems, they arrive at a ballroom transformed by soft music, silk and chiffon, into a balmy paradise. Janice Klausen, Cindy Hicks, and Donna Reed express their excitement with smiles and compliments.

"IT'S A PIECE OF HOLLY, hanging green against a pine tree," explains Harriet Stanley as she presents it to Mr. Sheridan Whiteside.

"AND CHRISTMAS may be postponed this year," reads Mrs. McCutcheon, concerning Mr. Whiteside's accident. Mrs. Dexter listens as they await his appearance.

"In the words of the master . . ."
This line added to the hilarity of the Senior play, "The Man Who Came To Dinner."

This story of a famous lecturer, Sheridan Whiteside, who has an unexpected visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Stanley held surprises and uncontrollable laughter for the audience.

Whiteside's rudeness and sarcasm scares the nurse, Miss Preen, from the nursing profession.

The town newspaperman, Bert Jefferson, adds a touch of romance to the play by falling in love with Maggie. Lorraine, the Hollywood glamour girl, tries to step in and break up the affair, only to find herself being shipped around the world in a mummy case, which gives more audience enjoyment, and also a happy ending.

"MY, YOU'RE LOOKING in the pink, Lorraine!" exclaims Banjo as Lorraine ignores his flattery.

"MR. WHITESIDE will be staying in the Stanley household while his hip heals," Maggie informs the press as her boss watches.

"BUT I HAVE TO get this interview or the editor will fire me," Bert Jefferson, a local reporter, protests to Maggie.

"IF I MAY INTERRUPT . . ." June Stanley looks on as Mr. Stanley tries to speak to Whiteside. Also watching are Mrs. Stanley, John, Whiteside, Dr. Bradley, and Miss Preen.

Gay Moods Pace Spring Party Time

GANGSTERS FROM THE "ROARING TWENTIES" made their appearance at the Senior Class party April 20. Pete Nelson, Carter Jaedicke, John McTaggart, Charlie Franklin and Jim Cook are in the back row. Frank Janzen is bewildered by Larry Ladd and John Wasko in front.

GUN READY and eyes alert, Royal Rader spots a stray hand reaching for a card. Janet LaFaver claims it as hers at the Sophomores' centennial party May 29.

KING OF "BALI HAI," Larry Dixon receives a lei from his date, Gretchen Pomerence. He was chosen from five candidates.

CANDLELIGHT ILLUMINATES the faces of sixty-two juniors and seniors of National Honor Society as they reverently pledge themselves to be honorable, to serve, to lead aright, to uphold scholarship, and thus to keep alive the Sacred Flame.

NHS Installation . . . Climax of Effort

Seniors of the top 15 per cent and juniors of the top 5 per cent of their class make up National Honor Society. The purpose of NHS is to create enthusiasm for scholarship, to stimulate a desire to render service, to promote worthy leadership, and encourage development of good character in pupils at Washington. Members of the society chosen to speak were Barbara French, invocation; Pete Nelson, flag salute; Marvin DeGroff, welcome; John Turk, Spirit of the Flame; Dally Smith, Character; Sharon Hansen, Scholarship; Dan Adams, Leadership; and Ralph Hile, who gave a poem.

NHS PINS are treasured possession. Dan Adams and Pete Nelson admire Gary Grazda's pin which he has so proudly placed on his lapel after the installation ceremony.

Eager Beavers Honored

MIKI O'BANNON'S sleeve filled with four Honor patches for her scholastic ability is the reason for Margaret Williams' intense interest. This means that Miki has been on the Honor Roll the required number of times during all four years of her high school education.

DOROTHY SCHOFIELD illustrates why she is the 1961 winner of Crisco's Award to the outstanding student in Home Economics as she sews a baby's sundress for an extra project. Dorothy has taken Home Economics I, II, and III, and Clothing III.

MARY KAY CORDILL and Pete Nelson are receiving the Bausch and Lomb Award. This award is presented to the high school seniors with the highest grade averages in science courses. In order to be eligible, the students must have taken Biology, Chemistry, and Physics.

PAULETTE ARMSTRONG, "Business Student of the Year," takes dictation from Mr. Jack Masters, Shorthand I and II teacher. She will compete as our representative against other business students in this area.

GWEN CHAFFIN received the "musician of the year" award from Mr. James Ralston this year for her work in the music department. Gwen plays the piano for the various vocal groups, and she has done so for the past four years.

Athletes Form Active Club

Providing a unified group for all WHS lettermen, the W-Club completed another successful year. Led by officers: Mike Whittier, president; Tom Barrett, vice-president; Gary Cindrich, secretary-treasurer; and faculty sponsors Emerson Wilson, Hobert Neill and Dick Lee.

The group handled many activities such as selling seats at athletic events and selling WHS sweat shirts. There were also a W-Club Chicken Fry and a spring picnic.

The final award, and the most important to the lettermen, was the yearly Sportsmanship Award. The recipient of the honor this year was Greg Wilder. Greg was chosen to exemplify the high ideals in athletics and good sportsmanship. The award is a plaque and it will have Greg's name engraved on it and be kept in the school trophy case.

MR. SPORTSMANSHIP OF WHS is Greg Wilder, the winner of the 1961 Sportsmanship award. Greg lettered in football and baseball his senior year.

League Co-Champs, Regional Champions Leads to State Runner-Up

THEY NEVER GAVE UP! 'Cat Gary Kenegy shows this as he prepares to bat, dressed in catcher's equipment, with two outs. A close game was the password for the 1961 squad as they played extra inning contests.

WILDCAT THINKING MAN, Jerry Carson, sparked the regional champs, by pitching nine wins during the spring schedule. This junior hurler completed 76 1/3 innings during his second year with the 'Cat varsity squad.

DRESSED IN UNIFORMS just as the Wildcat team, Coach William Mondt and Head Coach Perk Rietemeier discuss the batting order in the coming inning.

With the thaw of the ground, Washington baseballers dug in their spikes, picked up their gloves, bats, and baseballs, and were off to what proved to be the most successful season in the school's history. Season highlights included a respectable second place finish at the state tournament in El Dorado, and a first place finish in the Border League campaign.

White letters were presented to 14 bat-and-glove men who defeated Wyandotte three out of three, the elusive third in the finals of the regionals. The men who brought home three trophies were able to whip each team at least once. They spanked Ward, the 1960 state champs, twice, and North Kansas City, last year's Border League kings, once.

Squad Reigns as Regional Champs

A major portion of the past season success may be attributed to Coach Perk Reitemeier and his trusty assistant, Bill Mondt. Both coaches spent countless hours teaching fundamentals before they fielded their championship team.

Even though every victory was a team effort, special applause should be singled out to junior hurler Jerry Carson, who led the pitching staff with a 9-2 mark. Senior first baseman, Bob Gabel, took the Border league crown with a 2.357 average. Also Gary Kenegy did an outstanding job at his behind the plate duties.

BATS AND BALLS WERE FORGOTTEN as an enthusiastic team celebrated the Wichita North victory in the state tournament. Winning over North put the 'Cats into first place competition.

COMPARING SCORES and discussing helpful hints, the top five golfmen, Paul Chainey, Lynn Minger, Mel O'Connor, Jim Smith, and Nick Kanakares.

PROPER STANCE is important and Golf Coach Richard Lee helps his squad with these fundamentals.

Spring Is Here, So Is Golf

As warm weather rolled around, outdoor fans gathered their equipment and headed for their nearest recreation spot.

So it was with the Washington golfers as they loaded their clubs and headed for the nearest 18 holes.

Practice, at Victory Hills and Quivera Lake, lasted for approximately four hours each afternoon. The team consisted of only junior and sophomore boys with juniors Jim Smith, Nick Kanekares, Paul Chainey, and Mel O'Conner lettering.

Season meets brought a record of 1-9 and a gain in experience for next year's team.

ACCURACY and a balanced swing help build a good golfer. Mel O'Connor, two year letterman, practices these at Victory Hills golf course.

TEAM MEMBERS GIVE HELPFUL ADVICE as Nick Kanakaraes tees off in a daily practice. The golf squad participated in tournaments at several neighboring courses.

DUE TO THE LACK OF TENNIS COURTS at WHS, transportation played a big part for the squad. Most of the practices were held at Klamm and the matches were away.

Tennis Men Are Always On

INSTRUCTION FROM THE SIDELINES are given by tennis coach Robert Wilson to team member Bill Cunningham. In his second year with the new sport Coach Wilson sees much improvement every year.

The Move

Newest member in the athletic department is the outdoor sport of tennis. Starting two years ago, the competitive sport is now getting a rise in participation and attention.

This year's lettermen, Don Kesner (captain), Stan Fowler, and Don Hammond, seniors; Bill Cunningham, junior; and Bob Bailey and Jim Folscroft, sophomores, led the team through practice sessions every afternoon from three to six o'clock.

As the 1961 spring track season came into focus the Wildcats' 8 lane track became a working place for more than sixty boys.

Highlighting the season, the cindermen brought home the first place trophy from the Argentine Relays for the seventh time in eight years. Lots of hard work, time, and planning was necessary as Washington played host to nine area schools in the sixth annual WHS Invitational.

After finishing in the top three places at regionals, eight boys and three managers accompanied Coach Hobert Neill to the state meet.

As a young team the thin-clads held their own and were sparked by Loren Crown, sophomore halfmiler. The season's captains were Tom Barrett and Frank Williams.

Up and over goes Charles Johnson, Wildcat Trackster.

Hi Bob,
It seems so funny
I didn't even know you were in one of my classes (Psychology) until we went on that trip to Washington D.C. & New York. We sure had lots of fun. I wear those gloves all the time. Just remember Bob - don't walk down 10 any blocks in the rain anymore. It's not good for your health. Best of luck in the future. Bob you are a real swell guy.
Love,

Dear two dolla,

Well money hasn't this year been a blake. Especially in English Clab. Your loads of fun and a we-we simple.
I know you can't help it. You really a swell guy. We've had many laughs and many good times. Remember the time you tore up that beautiful white shoe. Well kid, here's hoping we have more laughs next year.
Be good this summer and stay sweet.

Love ya,
at last I feel Brenda wanted. Be a —
guy. Sincerely,

David

Hi Groundie,
well (you nut) one year in this English
class, with you and I've had it. You are really so awfully different from the rest of the human race. Some day you might overcome your problem. I sure hope
so. The best of every thing to a really great guy.

Love ya.

Cornie L.

P.S. Hope that some day you find Cinderella.

My dear Bob,

We sure have had a lot of fun in study hall! I hope to have you in some of my classes next year too. This time next year we'll be planning for our graduation. What sounds like a SUPERIOR idea, doesn't it?

Well, take care of your Cad, white tennis shoes, and sucker, and don't be surprised to see me in your pool this summer. I might even see you down at the lake.

Be good — if the situation fits.

Dear Bob (Superior)

You and I have had a few classes together this year and boy have they been a blast. Our Teachers in particular about drove me nuts never again will I get in to a class like that. One of these long lost days will be big seniors but untill then we're just juniors naturally. Hope to see you this summer in California.

Dear Bob, I have been a pleasure being in typing class together this year. I hope we are in some classes together next year! Good Luck as a big had Senior next year!
